The highly anticipated Lebovic Centre for Arts and Entertainment - Nineteen on the Park, will finally be unveiled to the public this Saturday night.

The premiere gala includes a variety show featuring professional and amateur performers. Tickets are $100.

Other ticketed events include Seussical on Tuesday and Wednesday by the York Durham Academy of Performing Arts and Motus O's Carmina Burana on Saturday, May 23. Tickets are $10 and $25, respectively.

known as the municipal offices, the structure has housed the Stanley Theatre, an auto garage and billiard hall.

A dry run through the facility was conducted for and by town staff last week.

"This is an exciting moment in the town's history," said Councillor Susanne Hilton in a media release. "We believe that this new centre will bring fresh life to Main Street, as residents find compelling reasons to spend their leisure time right here."

There are also many free events occurring throughout the two-week celebration that include Spring Spirit, which is an ecumenical worship service Sunday at 9:30 a.m., followed by an afternoon of Mother and Mother Earth celebrations, and Sustainable Stouffville, where students will mount artistic responses to films created by youth for youth on sustainability.
