

Carrying torch? Town wants a word

company will come forward to sponsor their purchase.

"It's going to be a great memento for them," Ms Ongman said.

Organizers are also hoping to display memorabilia from local athletes who have participated in previous Games.

The town would also like to speak with residents who have been chosen to carry the torch, locally or somewhere else along the route.

"We're trying to get anyone in town who's been involved with the Olympics to come out," Ms Ongman said.

The Mayor's Youth Council will be documenting the torch relay. Youth council members will be placed along the entire parade route to video tape the torch's journey through town.

The various vantage points will then be edited together to recreate the Olympic torch's time through Stouffville.

Anyone interested in volunteering to help organize events celebrating the torch relay coming through Stouffville is asked to contact Nicole Ongman at 905-640-1910 ext. 323, nicole.ongman@townofws.com.

STOUFFVILLE ONE OF 1,000 TOWNS ON TOUR

The 2010 Olympic torch relay starts on Oct. 30 in Esquimalt, B.C. and will travel 45,000 km by foot, boat and vehicle across Canada and back to Vancouver's BC Place where on Feb. 12, the Olympic cauldron will be lit to signal the official start of the 2010 Olympic Winter Games. This will be the longest torch relay in history to be contained within the host country.

The torch relay will last 106 days and go through more than 1,000 communities or places of interest. The torch comes through Stouffville on Day 49.

There are a total of 12,000 torch bearers.
