Veteran Canadian actor Saul Rubinek plays Artie, the warehouse's caretaker, in Warehouse 13.

Architecture, clock tower drew TV show to town

The episode shot in Stouffville is for the second season.

Warehouse 13 will make its Canadian debut on April 23 on Citytv.

So why was Stouffville chosen as a South Dakota stand in?

"It's because of the beautiful architecture on the main street and the clock tower," said Beth Sulman, production publicist for Warehouse 13.

Civic Square and the front of the post office were in scenes.

And what do these Hollywood bigwigs think of Stouffville?

"It's been terrific. The town's people are fantastic and it's been a pleasure working with the town," Ms Sulman said.

Although the cast and crew shot only one episode here, Ms Sulman did not rule out the possibility of making a return visit.

WALKEN, BELUSHI, DUNST ACTED ON OUR MAIN STREET

Warehouse 13 isn't the first television show or movie to be shot in and around Whitchurch-Stouffville.

Some of the movies that took over Main Street include:

- The Russell Girl (2008) with Amber Tamblyn

- Who Killed Atlanta's Children? (2000) with James Belushi

- Strike! (1998) with Kirsten Dunst

- Martin's Day (1984) with Richard Harris and Karen Black

- The Dead Zone (1983) with Christopher Walken

Television shows shot downtown include The West Wing, Degrassi: The Next Generation and Nikita.

The Silver Jubilee Club returned to its roots. The former Stouffville post office played the role of a South Dakota post office during filming of a TV show this week.
