So you think you can flower arrange, Mr. Editor?

Green For Life, a fundraiser for Lebovic Centre for Arts & Entertainment – Nineteen on the Park, will feature pros and amateurs of the floral world on April 22.

Presented by the Stouffville Horticultural Society, the event will include speakers Denis Flanagan and Paul Zammit.

The So You Think You Can Flower Arrange portion will feature unseasoned celebrities, including Sun-Tribune editor Jim Mason, trying their hand with flowers.

The evening gets underway at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $30 at the Nineteen On The Park box office. Wine, juice, hors d'oeuvres and door prizes will be included.

Grab a spot on Big Bike for Heart and Stroke Fund

The Heart and Stroke Big Bike rolls into Stouffville May 13.

You can enter a team, collect sponsors (minimum $50 each) and hop on for a 20-minute ride at the bike's 2010 Stouffville headquarters, Boston Pizza.

Last year, more than 40,000 riders in more than 200 Canadian communities helped raise more than $7 million for research.

To register a team or for more information, call 905-853-6355.

CORRECTION

Altmann volunteered at fair

A story in the April 3 edition on mayoral candidate Justin Altmann contained an error. Mr. Altmann has been a volunteer at the petting zoo at the Markham Fair for the past 16 years. The Sun-Tribune regrets the error.

Good day

Don Paulikot (above) carries a cross during a stations of the cross walk through downtown Stouffville on Good Friday. About 75 people took part in the inaugural ecumenical stations of the cross walk. They carried a cross from Christ Church Anglican, along Main Street (below), stopping along the way to remember the story of Christ's crucifixion through readings. It ended at Stouffville United Church for more readings and prayers. The service included the combined choirs (right) and clergy of Christ Church, Stouffville United, Lemonville United and St. James Presbyterian.
