

Jurors Sarah Beveridge, Todd Tremeer and Olexander Wlasenko review entries in the Latcham Gallery's annual juried show Tuesday. From the 191 works submitted Monday, 28 were accepted by the jury. The show-opening reception is tomorrow. Other events are scheduled around the show, which closes June 5.

COMING UP

See inside juried show at Latcham

Three Stouffville artists make grade with judges

You can see – and hear – art during the month of May at the Latcham Gallery in Stouffville during four events.

You'll see a variety of styles and subject matter when the gallery's open juried exhibition kicks off with a reception on Sunday from 1 to 3 p.m.

From the 191 works submitted Monday, 28 were accepted by the jury on Tuesday. Artists in the exhibition come from Guelph to Cobourg, and include Stouffville's Jacquelin Heichert, James Jennings and Tony Volpe.

At the reception, you can talk with the artists and help choose the piece of art that will receive the People's Choice Award. In addition, awards totaling $1,000 will be presented to artists at the opening.

The exhibition, sponsored by Stouffville IDA Pharmacy, continues until June 5.

On May 18, you can find out what it's like being a juror for one of these shows. Imagine yourself standing in the middle of a room filled with a couple of hundred works of all sizes and descriptions. Then you have to choose just a fraction of that number for the exhibition.

MUSICAL ART

Sarah Beveridge will tell you her first-hand experiences in the world of jurying at the discussion evening at 7:30 p.m. She is an artist, art educator and independent curator and juried the Stouffville show with artist and instructor Todd Tremeer and Olexander Wlasenko, who is an artist and the curator of the Station Gallery in Whitby. The discussion evening is open to everybody.

The gallery's new It's In the Bag noontime get-together, where you can bring your lunch and enjoy some treats and snacks provided by the gallery, is on for May 26 from noon to 2 p.m.

Bring your questions and comments and enjoy an informal guided tour of a great variety of art.

And if you've ever wondered what musicians make of all this, come out to the gallery on the show's last day, June 5, at 3 p.m.

At 'What Does a Work of Art Sound Like?', local musicians will present their original compositions or a selected piece of music that reflects how they feel about a work they've chosen from the exhibition. Donations are welcome.
