Canadian Country Music Hall of Fame inductees and York Region favourites The Good Brothers, along with a handful of their famous friends, are rallying around a family member the best way they know how – by throwing a benefit concert.

Nancy Gipson, the former wife of Brian Good, is battling breast and brain cancer.

"We wanted to put this show together to help her out spiritually and financially," said Bruce Good, Brian's twin brother. "She's not good either way, but I think she's spiritually better off than financially."

The concert, which took about three weeks to pull together, is this Saturday at Rolling Hills Golf Club in Gormley, 12808 Warden Ave.

Two years ago, Ms Gipson, who is originally from Richmond Hill but now lives in Rosemont near Alliston, was diagnosed with breast cancer, which was in remission until a few weeks ago.

"It's back and they found (cancer) cells in her brain as well," Mr. Good said.

Joining The Good Brothers will be The Sadies, which consists of Bruce's sons Dallas and Travis, The Stagger Lees with Brian and Nancy's daughter D'Arcy and special guests Greg Keelor of Blue Rodeo, Ron Sexsmith, Lou Moore and Prairie Oyster's Russell deCarle and John P. Allen.

CTV's Rod Black will also be on hand helping with hosting duties.

The Good Brothers are no strangers to performing at benefit concerts, but this one is extra special.

"This is on a more personal level, it's all about family for us," Mr. Good said.

The evening also includes silent and live auctions, door prizes and raffles.

Some of the prizes available include an accommodation package for six to Hawaii, a golf and getaway package to Deerhurst Resort and a signed print of the Canadian women's Olympic gold medal hockey team.

Tickets are $30 each and available by calling 905-888-1611 or e-mailing thegoodbrothers@hotmail.com

Doors open at 7 p.m. with entertainment starting at 8.
