CHARITY: Cops remember former colleagues, loved ones

Still time to fight cancer at police golf tournament

York Regional Police will be fighting cancer instead of crime Monday.

Chief Armand LaBarge and the police service's Clubs4Cancer Committee have invited residents of York Region to join them at the tournament.

There's still time to enter a foursome in the event.

This is the third year for the fundraiser, which has raised

$50,000 for the Southlake

Regional Health Cancer Centre in Newmarket and $20,000 for the Sunnybrook Health Sciences

Centre in Toronto.

"So many of us have been touched by this disease and this is an opportunity to raise funds for cancer research," said spokesperson Sgt. Gary Phillips.

This is the third year for the fundraiser, which has raised $50,000 for the Southlake

Regional Health Cancer Centre in Newmarket and $20,000 for the Sunnybrook Health Sciences Centre in Toronto.

This fundraising tournament is a tribute to the lives of many, but in particular the loved ones of tourney organizers who have lost their lives: Judy Parke, Judi (Sine) Grimes, Michelle Hobor and members of the York Regional Police family, including Staff Sgt. Doug Hall, Det. Const. Doug Nuttall and long-time civilian member Deb Young.

The tourney will be played at the prestigious Coppinwood Golf and Country Club in the Uxbridge Township community of Goodwood, just east of Stouffville.

Registration begins at 7 a.m., with a shotgun tee-off at 7:45.

A barbecue lunch will be served, followed by a live auction hosted by CTV Toronto sports director Lance Brown.

All proceeds will go to the Sunnybrook Health Sciences Centre and the Markham Stouffville Hospital cancer unit.

For more information, or to reserve tickets, contact Terry Hunt at 1-866-876-5423 ext. 7699, or e-mail to 5553@yrc.ca
