

ENTERTAINMENT: A Women of Independent Means

Webster, Emily TV actress at Nineteen on Park

SUSAN CLARK: Samia native won Emmy and appeared in big-budget, big-screen productions.

Susan Clark may be best known for her TV roles, including 150 episodes of Webster and in CBC's Emily of New Moon.

But she has also performed on stages all across her native Canada, from the Shaw Festival to the Manitoba Theatre Centre.

She'll be in Stouffville Nov. 18 and 19, appearing in a staged reading of A Woman of Independent Means at Nineteen on the Park - Lebovic Centre for Arts & Entertainment.

Ms Clark, 70, has starred in 20 feature films and more than a dozen Movies-of-the-Week, including Amelia Earhart (Emmy nomination) and Butterbox Babies (Gemini nomination), and she won a best actress Emmy for her title role in Babe, the story of Olympic gold medalist Babe Didrickson Zaharias.

She is married to Webster co-star Alex Karras.

The Sarnia native had leading roles in Coogan's Bluff with Clint Eastwood, Tell Them Willie Boy Is Here with Robert Redford, Night Moves with Gene Hackman and Airport.

Adapted from the internationally acclaimed best-selling novel, her current project is a heartwarming one-woman mini-saga that spans the first seven decades of the 20th century.

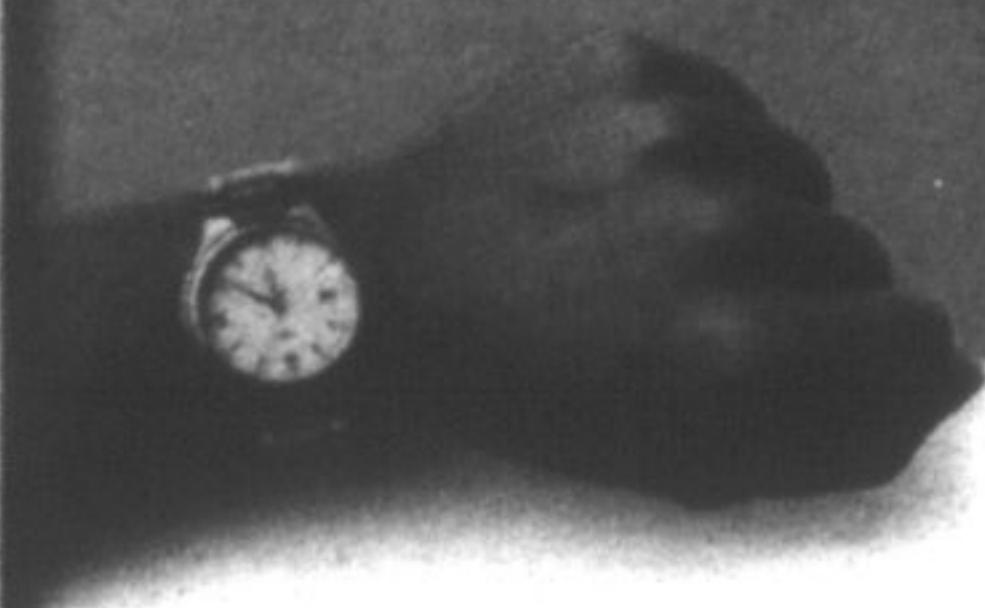

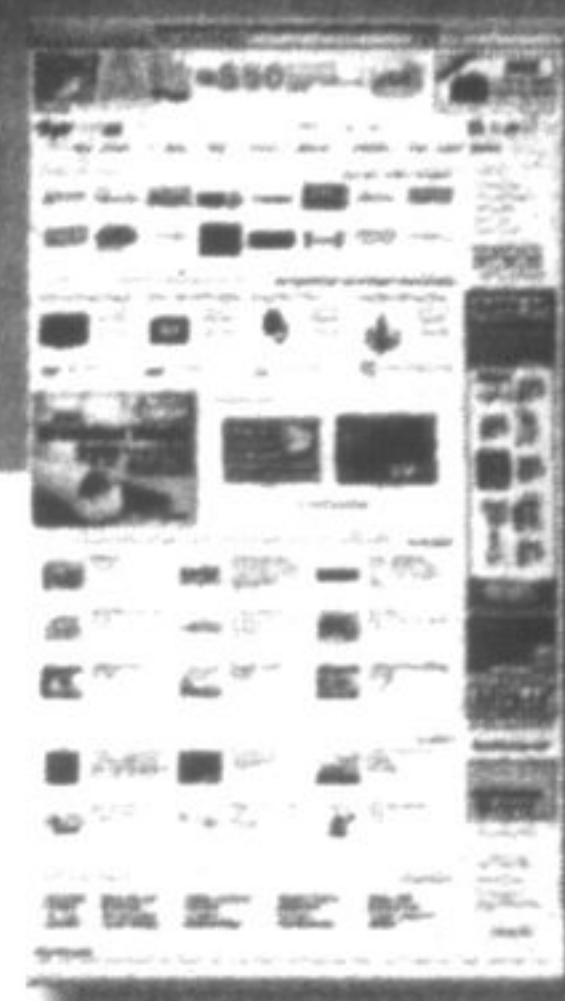

It is told through the letters of a very determined but endearing Texas woman as she confronts life's inevitable loss while continuing to embrace its endless possibilities.

Through her correspondence with her parents, her husband, her friends and her children, Elizabeth learns to take life's defeats with humour, dignity and courage—from the deaths of her first husband and her son, to the cruel rejection of her adult daughter, and finally, to the 'vulgarity' of old age.

Ultimately, it is a joyous and moving story of survival and triumph.
