Veni vidi vici.

Daniel Morad hopes he can boast those words when he takes his Rotax DD2 Max kart to the La Conca International Circuit in Muro Leccese, Italy, starting Sunday.

While in Muro Leccese, the 20-year-old Stouffville resident will be part of a 14-member Team Canada kart racing contingent that will compete at the Rotax Max Challenge Grand Finals.

Morad joined Team Canada based largely on his performance during the 2010 Florida Winter Tour after taking the Rotax DD2 Max championship in decisive fashion.

Morad ran a blistering campaign during the 2010 Florida Winter Tour as he took the checkered flag in the opening race.

After running sixth in the second main event, Morad raced off with victories in the next four main events to end the season with five wins out of six races.

That put him on top of the title chase and punched his ticket to Italy.

For Morad, his presence at the Rotax Max Challenge Grand Finals marks his second consecutive appearance in the Rotax DD2 Max competition.

"I'm really excited to be back on Team Canada for the grand finals," he said on the ekartingnews.ca website. "I'm hoping to build on what I experienced last year, even if it took a turn for the worse in the final. I can't wait for my round two."
