

Student helping create wigs

Stouffville's Jen Anderson is donating her long locks to charity.

The 20-year-old York University student is having her approximately 15-inch-long brunette hair cut and donated to Angel Hair For Kids, a not-for-profit organization run by A Child's Voice Foundation.

The foundation transforms donated hair into wigs for financially disadvantaged children who have lost their own hair due to medical conditions and treatments.

Donated hair must be at least 12 inches long. It takes 10 to 12 donated ponytails to make one hair prosthesis and costs between $800 and $1,000 to make, according to Angel Hair For Kids.

To help cover the cost of creating the wig, a donation box has been set up at Barthau

Jewellers, 5758 Main St.

Ms Anderson will have her hair cut Saturday at 5 p.m. at Fame International, 5892 Main St.

Donate food, win Leaf tickets

Make a non-perishable food item donation at MCO Stouffville Orthodontics and you will be entered into a draw to win a pair of Leaf tickets.

Between Nov. 1 and Dec. 7, MCO Orthodontics, 28 Sandiford Dr., will collect the food and donate it to the Whitchurch-Stouffville Food Bank. Clients and the general public are welcome to donate. MCO will double the donation by matching it pound for pound.
