

MYSTERY VETERAN

Recognize this man? This photograph was found hidden behind a picture of another veteran when Stouffville's Royal Canadian Legion moved this year. "We do believe it is from the Second World War ... all of the pictures are vets from the Stouffville area," said past branch president Murray Pattenden. All of the photographs have been re-hung in the new clubroom on Mostar Street, except this one. If you have any information, call the legion (905-640-1714). The legion is hosting Remembrance Day services tomorrow at the Stouffville Cemetery at 1 p.m. and Friday at the branch at 10:45 a.m.

THINGS TO DO

Eating, learning on menu during all-female weekend

BY SANDRA BOLAN

A hands-on cooking lesson, fitness classes to burn off the cooking class menu, a craft sale as well as a variety of meal specials from downtown eateries are just some of the activities taking place during the first-ever Downtown Girls' Weekend.

The concept came together last year during the Beyond Craft Show and Sale, according to Anna Rose, downtown co-ordinator for the Town of Whitchurch-Stouffville.

"We created a full day of experiences for women and people getting together," Ms Rose said. "I, too, like to get together with my girlfriends and make a day of it."

For women who want to get together and be served some great food, Fishbone Restaurant is offering a steak dinner with all the trimmings Nov. 10 for $45. The Cornerhouse Restaurant is offering a brunch Nov. 13 for $28 and La Cuisine de ma Mere is offering a dinner for $30 Nov. 10 and 11 and a $14 brunch Nov. 12 and 13.

RESTAURANT OFFERS

Throughout the weekend, The Red Bulb Espresso Bar will provide lunch and dessert specials for $9 and $5 respectively.

For women who want to cook their own meal, Rogers TV chef Linda Mauti is hosting a hands-on lasagna-making lesson Nov. 10. The cost is $45 and it is limited to 24 people.

"Eat, learn and take something home," Ms Rose said.

Stouffville Joint Venture Fitness and Physiotherapy is offering Zumba, spin and fitness boot camp classes Nov. 10 to 12. The cost is $5 per person.

COOKING, SEWING CLASSES

Assorted readings are being held at Moon flower's Magical Touch Nov. 11 and 13. The cost is $25 per person.

The Hearty Artichoke has a number of activities taking place throughout that weekend, including a make-up artist consultation clothing trunk show and mini reiki session. Each package is $15 per person.

Ann's Fabrics is providing a Christmas table runner making class for $45 a person Nov. 12. No sewing experience is required, while Stouffville Florist will assist people in making an outdoor winter urn for $50.

All money raised from the weekend, excluding the Beyond Craft Show and Sale, will go to the United Way. The craft show benefits the Latcham Gallery.
