

CHRISTMAS

Carollers help light up Main St.

Hot chocolate, carolling and the lighting of Christmas trees are all a part of this year's Festival of Lights Tour.

The walking tour takes place Friday. It starts from the Main Street train station at 7 p.m.

Once the station itself is all a-glow, the group will walk over to the Care and Share and help light its tree, which will be followed by the lighting of the gazebo and the tree on the balcony of the Lebovic Centre for Arts and Entertainment - Nineteen on the Park.

Along the way, Sarah Amelard will lead the group in Christmas carols.

"It's a tradition at Christmas you don't see anymore — people stopping at people's homes carolling," said Anna Rose, downtown co-ordinator for the Town of Whitchurch-Stouffville.

About 100 people participated last year, she said.

Following the tree lighting at the Lebovic Centre for Arts and Entertainment - Nineteen on the Park, Ms Rose said people are welcome to go inside for the Community Christmas Concert, which is being presented by Oak Ridges-Markham MP Paul Calandra.

Tickets are $10 each and support Emmanuel International.
