

Queen's medals for Navy vets

Two former naval officers from Whitchurch-Stouffville recently received Queen's Diamond Jubilee medals.

John McCracken was an engineer in the Royal Canadian Navy from 1956 to 1962. He served on destroyers, aircraft carriers and submarines.

Ray Middleton was a sonarman in the RCN and served on destroyers and submarines from 1965 to 1976.

The veterans were presented their medals during a ceremony held in Ottawa last month.

They received the medals in recognition of their military service, continued involvement with the Submariners Association, Royal Canadian Legion as well as military museums and community.
