Hometown artist in spotlight

Stouffville's Jacquelin Heichert's The Matrix of Choice will be at The Latcham Gallery from Jan. 12 to Feb. 16.

Through a collection of wooden sculptures, book works and prints, Ms Heichert examines the choice-full eco-system that has been spawned by the consumer culture.

"The Matrix of Choice examines and highlights different aspects of choice, choosing and decision making in everyday life," said Chai Duncan, curator of The Latcham Gallery in a media release.

"The pieces in this exhibition reference decision-making games or tools, but they never actually reveal a decision. In this way the works speak to a specific moment in time before a decision comes to fruition, between a question and an answer and in doing so enables the cultural practices, rituals and value systems of the human experience to be explored."

Ms Heichert has exhibited her work in Ontario, Quebec and in Japan's Kyoto Municipal Museum.

The opening reception of The Matrix of Choice takes place Saturday from 1 to 3 p.m. Ms Heichert will be in attendance. Everyone is welcome.

Author has advice for investors

Author, founder and owner of Barrie-based ValueTrend, Keith G. Richards, will speak at the Whitechurch-Stouffville Public Library Jan. 24 on how lay investors can limit risk and earn predictable returns in the current market.

Mr. Richards has been in the securities industry since 1990 and is a member of Chartered Market Technicians in Canada.

He has also been critical of the commission-based, follow-the-pack approach to investing, according to his company website. Mr. Richards released his first book, Smart-Bounce: 3 Action Steps to Portfolio Recovery, in 2009. His second book, Sideways: Using the Power of Technical Analysis to Profit in Uncertain Times, was released in 2011.
