There will be a pretty impressive award beside the customary apple on the desk of Musselman's Lake's Terry Cariglia-Bull.

Ms Cariglia-Bull received the Teacher of the Year award this year for exemplifying the York District Public School Board's mission, vision and values, as well as her commitment to student success in the classroom and the school.

She teaches at Morning Glory Public School in Pefferlaw.

Quietly determined to make a difference in how teachers deliver the curriculum in a clear, direct way so that students can and do learn, Ms Cariglia-Bull was lauded for her dedication to strength in curriculum leadership, literacy, mentoring, character education and building family and community capacity in working with students and colleagues.

It was noted "she does not give up — she thinks of different ways to support and help people".

Quietly determined to make a difference in how teachers deliver the curriculum in a clear, direct way so that students can and do learn, Ms Cariglia-Bull was lauded for her dedication to strength in curriculum leadership, literacy, mentoring, character education and building family and community capacity in working with students and colleagues.

She makes students aware of their own responsibility for their learning.

Her commitment to her job, as well as her love for it, has been an instrumental part of the continuing success that students, parents and staff share at Morning Glory.

Ms Cariglia-Bull will be recognized at a public board meeting in the fall, along with fellow award recipient Teri Fowler from Aurora High School.

"All of our nominees for this award, through their dedication, passion and kindness, shine a light on the wonderful things happening in public education, in our schools and in our communities," said Ken Thurston, director of education for the board.

"The efforts of our teachers, like Terry and Teri, are leading us toward greater success in advancing our mission to inspire and prepare learners for life in our changing world community."
