We're expanding content
 on yorkregion.com

Thanks to our team of award-winning journalists, York Region Media Group's newspapers and website are already your best source of local news in York Region.

Now, we are making changes to our website, yorkregion.com, to bring you a broader range of coverage, including international, national, major sports and entertainment news.

"Not only will yorkregion.com continue to bring you the latest daily news, features and event coverage in your community, users of our website can now also be up-to-date on major stories breaking around the province, country and world," says Debora Kelly, editor in chief.

"Now, yorkregion.com is a one-stop reading experience for our informed and engaged users — it's part of our continued commitment to making our newspapers and website your undeniably best source of news locally."

To get the most out of your reading experience, here are a few tips for navigating our newly redesigned website:

For news at a glance from across York Region and around the globe, make the main York Region home page your destination.

From there, you can select crime, sports, opinion and entertainment news in our What's On section.

For news strictly from your hometown, you can select your city or town from the community menu for a new selection of content filtered for your community.

Other content you will find at yorkregion.com:

- Daily updated photo galleries of the events covered by our photographers across the region;
- Breaking news video;

... users of our website

can now also be up-to-date on major stories breaking around the province, country and world."

• An events calendar, where you find out what's going on in your neighbourhood and across the region. You can add your own event notices free of charge. Just sign up for a free account and start sharing your events with all of our readers.

• Digital copies of our print editions;

• Twitter feeds of who we're following around the region;

• The hottest daily WagJag shopping deals;

• Spotlight features on businesses in your neighbourhood;

• Community resource listings for important local services, including emergency contacts, municipal departments and services, politicians and recreation facilities.
