

HELP AFTER HAIYAN

Mission aids vulnerable typhoon victims

"Wala iwanan" means "no-one is left behind" in the Philippines.

It's been heard often by Barney McGlade, a colleague of the Christian Blind Mission, since Typhoon Haiyan struck this month.

The emergency response unit with the mission, whose Canadian headquarters is on Stouffville Road, has been working closely with local authorities and its partners in Iloilo province since they landed Nov. 11.

They've identified at least 1,000 families with a parent or child with a disability and 2,000 more especially vulnerable families - households headed by women, elderly people, and those living in poverty.

"We know that when disasters like Typhoon Haiyan hit, people with disabilities, the very old and the very poorest people are often missed in the relief efforts," said Ed Fpp, executive director of CBM Canada.

CBM is working with community-based organizations to distribute food and other essentials to survivors and families struggling with the added challenge of caring for a family member with a disability in the aftermath of Haiyan.

'... people with disabilities, the very old and the very poorest people are often missed in the relief efforts.'

CBM will provide relief to approximately 18,000 people in Conception.

CBM will also be working with other relief stakeholders in the area, so more aid is accessible to persons with disabilities.

According to municipal authorities, more than 80 per cent of the houses in Conception were destroyed by Typhoon Haiyan.
