

GO station crosswalk being revisited

Installing a crosswalk in front of the Main Street GO station is being re-evaluated.

Councillor Rob Hargrave requested town staff bring options to council on how to handle the pedestrian/vehicular traffic issue at Tuesday's first meeting of the new Whitchurch-Stouffville council.

There are lights at Main Street and Ninth Line and at Main and Market streets. Because of their distances away from the station, people opt to jaywalk across Main Street.

Some residents, especially those getting off GO trains from Toronto weekday evenings, have said it is unsafe crossing the road without a crosswalk.

The issue was previously discussed at a February 2011 council meeting, during which time it was noted a signaled pedestrian crossing could impact traffic flow on Blake Street, which is directly across from the train station.
