

To Think That I Saw It At Summitview

Summitview Public School students presented a magical multi-media performance as part of the York Region School Board's Innovation Project in May.

And To Think That I Saw It in Stouffville, inspired by Dr. Seuss's And To Think That I Saw It On Mulberry Street, took the audience on an amazing journey into Stouffville's past, present and future, with the help of beautiful and imaginative stage sets, lighting, props and costumes. Narrators, dancers and singers re-enacted community history, with the creative use of video clips to supply specific details.

Presentations included the Anishinabe Creation Story, the Underground Railroad, Immigrant Voices and The Wheels on the Bus/ These are the People in your Neighbourhood. And To Think That I Saw It In Stouffville also looked at the changing seasons, and sports and newscasts past, present and future, and included a fascinating array of local artifacts and displays for visitors to enjoy.

Music Through the Decades

This spring, students from grades 7 and 8 at Glad Park Public School took a musical trip back in time as part of their media history unit, covering the music scene from the 1950s to the '90s. Visual and oral reviews of the culture and news of the day were included in their presentation.
