Rising Stars To Rock Stouffville

On June 30, Courage My Love will perform at Nineteen on the Park as part of Strawberry Festival celebrations.

The Kitchener band comprises singer/songwriter and guitarist Mercedes Arn-Horn; her twin sister, drummer and vocalist Phoenix Arn-Horn, and bassist and vocalist David Blake-Dickson. Courage My Love have torn up the stages of a number of key festivals like the Vans Warped Tour, NXNE and Canadian Music Week while playing alongside the likes of Paramore, Tokyo Police Club and A Day To Remember. They recently became the youngest band ever to make it into the finals at the Indie Week Music Festival not once, but two years in a row.

Courage My Love want to play for the world one stage, one club at a time. Now is the time to see them and hear them, and watch them become what they have always wanted to be, in the finest tradition of all the great rock bands past and present.

Tickets for the concert, which starts at 8 p.m. June 30, are $10 and are available online or from the Nineteen on the Park box office. For more details and to watch the band in action, visit nineteenonthePark.com/courage.

Carniva

As always the 2012 Strawberry Festival offers rides, bouncy castles and cake.

Don't forget to decorate your bike for takes place at the train station at 8:30 a.m. with family and friends.

There will be magic in the air courtesy of a twisted take on your favourite anime, pony rides and a mind-bending spelling Tim on Stilts, as he strides through town ball corral in Sangster's Grove.

There will be lots of opportunities to eat along Main Street and in the park.
