With cooking and baking. So much labor taking; With butter to churn, And house to keep clean, Not a speck should be seen That her eye could discern.

At last said she, contented I'll be, And do the best I can; Perhaps some day. Fortune will come this way, And help a poor woman.

So she smiled as she worked. And never shirked, And last I'm glad to relate Fortune came her way, One happy day. As to all who patiently wait.

For you'll learn my dears, As you grow in years, What my moral teaches now; Fortune's at your feet If you'll' turn and greet, And to contentment bow.
