POSTMASTERS NOT TO

Rural postmasters throughout Canada will not suffer because of the decrease in postage rates. Most of these postmasters are paid on a percentage basis. They receive a percentage of the total revenue of their that which has proved so successful office. When the letter rate was cut down from three to two cents it meant a considerable difference in revenue and, therefore, in income.

The Postoffice Department, however, announced that the postmasresidence by the erection of a new the township and village councils ters would not be allowed to suffer, and leading citizens, the whole For the fiscal year 1927-28, which terminates next March 31st, the department will take the earnings of all rural postmasters in the year preceding the reduction in rates as a minimum. If their income is less under the lower rates, then the department will make up the difference If more, the postmasters will get the
