

CANADIAN FISHING REGULATIONS.

As our local "Old Ikes" are continually asking questions on the fishery regulations, we may say that the Dominion Government has adopted the following:—No person, other than a British subject, shall angle for fish or take any bass, mackinago, pike, perch (pickeral) or trout in Canadian waters, without having first obtained therefor an angler's permit, issued by the local fishery officer in each district under the authority of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

Each person, not a British subject, shall pay for such angler's permit a fee of $5 for a period of three months, or a fee of $10 for a period of six months.

One angler's permit only shall be issued to each applicant. Such permit shall not be transferable, and can be legally used only by the person whose name appears thereon. Each holder of an angler's permit shall be required to produce and exhibit his permit when called upon to do so by any fishery officer.

No person shall use, under an angler's permit, more than one fishing line, provided with not more than three hooks.

No person shall, under an angler's permit, take, catch or kill, in one day, more than twelve bass or pike, perch (pickeral), twenty trout or four mackinago.

No bass or pike, perch (pickeral) shall be retained or kept out of the water which shall measure less than ten inches in length and no trout shall be retained or kept out of the water under six inches in length, but every person who takes or catches any of the fish mentioned, of a less size than the minimum measurement named, shall immediately return such undersized fish to the water from which they were taken, and shall, if possible, liberate such fish alive.

No person holding an angler's permit shall export, sell or offer for sale any fish caught with hook and line.

Foreigners, when temporarily domiciled in Canada and employing Canadian boats and boatmen, shall be exempt from the regulations requiring permits.

THE BOOM IN CHEESE.

The cheese trade is getting to be an interesting study since refrigerating facilities have come to admit of the storage of a large portion of summer goods that formerly were obliged to go forward to the English market at once and at all hazard. It is stated that the quantity of cheese in cold storage in Montreal to-day is so large that all the available space has already been taken up, and holders have actually been obliged to ship their goods from the city to the Morrisburg Cold Storage Company and pay the extra freight, because they could not get room there for another box. Such a condition of things has never before existed in the history of the cheese trade.

It is estimated that there is nearly 100 per cent. more cheese held in Canada to-day than a year ago, most of which is on English account. One Montreal firm bought 25,000 boxes last week for English account, most of which went into store. Another bought a considerable quantity a few days ago, with instructions to ship last half of September, which of course means putting it into cold storage till then. In fact there has been a perfect craze for cheese for future shipment on English account. It is safe to say that the great bulk of the 300,000 boxes and over that is stored in Canada to-day is owned by English houses, and it is thought that by the end of this month the quantity will be increased to nearly 400,000 boxes. Shippers declare they have no faith in the situation at present high prices, and yet they are anxious to buy. Contracts covering 10,000 boxes of balance of season have been made in Belleville section at 10c, while other contracts in the Kingston district have been made at 10c Aug. 10th, September and 10th October.

The market is firm, factories are closely sold up and certain English houses are crazy for good. As was affirmed a few weeks ago, "Cheese is King," and it is to be hoped it will keep so, as it would be too bad to see it lose its crown after making such a good record this season.

JAPANESE HASTE.

From despatches we learn that the Japanese are in a frenzy to march on to Peking, while the Chinese are taking the situation quite coolly. The Chinese are evidently husbanding their energies for a long race and fight they will when fight they must.

Any armed force that should attempt to capture Peking would now find its way blocked by an army of 200,000 men more or less drilled in European discipline, and armed with all sorts of modern weapons, including Krupp cannon and quick-firing machine guns. Before he could reach the coast on which European armaments have often descended without opposition, the invader would have to reckon with a naval force at least as strong as that of the United States before the addition of the great warships of the last two years. This defensive line is under the training of English and German captains. The naval cordon once broken he would encounter a chain of forts, commanding every valuable point on the coast line, and fitted with casemates, revolving turrets, and all the most approved appliances for attack and defence. He would find the shallow waters and inlets sown with torpedoes; and then, after he had run the gauntlet of the fleets, forts and torpedoes, his real difficulties would begin. It is considered by those acquainted with the matter, that the whole represents a capacity for resistance which would make invasion by a first class European power too expensive to be thought of. Yet the work of defensive preparations has not been allowed to cease.

Some years ago, when the French Chambers voted for the annexation of Tonquin, they were encouraged to that measure by the famous dictum of Jules Ferry that China was a "quantite negligible." A war followed, in which the French, after occupying several islands and threatening the mainland, were forced to retire with damaged prestige, and without retaining an inch of Chinese soil, or claiming a right of indemnity which they demanded. China has been meek and yielding in respect of her suzerainties, but is jealous and fierce in defence of her country proper. Whoever ventures on an experiment of invasion will find to his cost how different the China of 1840 is from the China of 1890, when Peking was taken by the Anglo-French alliance. China took deep warning by that severe lesson, and now all is changed.

THE ASIATIC IRON ROAD.

It is estimated that the great Siberian railway, which for the past three years has been in progress, will cost something like a couple of hundred million dollars. The Russian Government is now working on it with such energy that it is probable that before the end of this century trains will be running from St. Petersburg through to Vladivostok on the sea of Japan. Six years is the limit for the time of construction. The Czarvitch cut the first sod at Vladivostok on May 24th, 1891. The length of the railway when completed is to be 4,785 miles, or about twice as long as the Canadian Pacific. On the eastern division trains are running from Vladivostok well into the interior, and it is expected to have the entire line in operation before the end of this year. The western division is also nearing completion. On the middle section, where the conditions are naturally the most difficult, and where work was begun last year, it is believed that construction will be finished by 1898, or two years earlier than the time originally set. The reason for this is that, by utilizing river navigation, it is found that rails can be laid from three different points at the same time instead of from but one, as was at first supposed; and that, moreover, the local workmen prove to be very abundant.

The Government purposes to spend large sums upon auxiliary enterprises for the development of the natural resources of Siberia, which, Mr. George Kennan has told us, are enormous. Branch lines are to be built, the rivers are to be improved, and steam navigation established from points intersected by the railway; colonization is to be assisted, iron works are to be encouraged, and scientific expeditions are to be organized for thorough study of the country. For these purposes, along the line of the first division alone 14,000,000 rubles, or about $10,000,000, have been appropriated. The political and social effects of this stupendous enterprise—which, indeed, is the most gigantic railway undertaking ever planned—will be of tremendous moment. Its effect on the Russian Government itself will be likely to be revolutionary. The great industrial development that will follow must be reflected in changes in the social and political fabric of Russia, which stand sadly in need of the civilizing influences this vast enterprise will bring. In opening up vast regions for settlement and as fields for commercial and manufacturing enterprise, it seems probable that the world's currents of migration will be turned in new directions. It may, therefore, have a considerable effect upon the future of our own country.
