Union protests at Liberal golf event

Some golfers taking part in the Ontario Liberal party's annual golf tournament in Whitchurch-Stouffville Monday morning missed their tee times because of the hundreds of public sector workers protesting.

The annual tournament was held at Warden Avenue's Emerald Hills Golf Club.

The cost was $3,400 per foursome.

The OPSEU members were handing out information detailing the "folly" of the Ontario government's privatization campaign, according to a media release.

"At a number approaching $3 billion, this government has spent a fortune on the Pan Am Games, but when it comes to public services and their own employees, they say there's no money," said OPSEU President Warren (Smokey) Thomas in a media release. "Sport is about fairness and quality public services are the fairest game in town."

Thomas had a clear message for the Premier and her foursomes. "Wherever these fundraisers occur, you can expect OPSEU to join the tour."
