God has role in A Little Fire

Messages from God made Aithne a prophet. Then one day the messages stopped coming.

That is the premise behind Theatre of the Beat's latest production, A Little Fire, which will be staged at the Lebovic Centre for Arts and Entertainment – Nineteen on the Park, March 4 and 5.

The play was written by Megan Piercey Monafu.

"I got to sit back and be an actor and a producer. It's a great thing," said Johnny Wideman, who typically writes the plays staged by the Stouffville-based theatre company. "It's fun to lose yourself in a new identity."

A Little Fire was inspired by the true story of a girl who claimed God told her what to paint.

"But there's almost nothing of reality in (the play), just an exploration of that idea," Wideman said.

In the play, at 16, Aithne suddenly stops having visions from God regarding what she must paint, much to the chagrin of her fame-loving father.

Without direction from God, Aithne lands in jail, where she meets a 20-something man running from adulthood.

As they start telling their stories, things start to become clear.

The play made its debut in Ottawa earlier this year as part of TACTICS.
