Trio taken in OHL draft

Three Stouffville teens heard their names called out front and centre when the Ontario Hockey League conducted their annual priority selection Saturday.

However, all three players – all born in 2000 – had to wait a while in the process.

Cameron Hough was the first Stouffville resident chosen, in the 13th round of the online draft by the Sarnia Sting with the 257th selection.

Listed as a five-foot, 10-inch, 152-pound forward, Hough toiled with Vaughan Kings minor midget AAA squad this past season and recorded 26 goals and 31 assists in 66 contests.

In the 15th round, Tyler Davis, 16, was taken by the Owen Sound Attack with the 291st selection.

A five-foot, 11-inch, 195-lb. forward, Davis played this past season with the Markham Waxers AAA minor midgets and amassed 14 goals and 23 assists in 32 tilts.

With the 293rd pick in the 15th round, the Niagara IceDogs chose defenceman Justin King.

Listed at six-foot, three-inches, 185 lbs., King, 16, played this past season with the Gilmour Academy Prep Lancers in Ohio.

Another trophy for minor midgets

The Stouffville Clippers AA minor midgets were up to the challenge when they played the Whitby Wildcats and skated off with a 4-2 win in their one-game, winner-take-all format in the York Simcoe/Lakeshore League Challenge in Whitby Saturday.

The York Simcoe champion Clippers drew first blood on a goal by Nick Smith to take a 1-0 lead entering the first intermission.

After Whitby battled back to tie the game, the Clippers regained the upper hand with a goal from Joel Roberts.

But before the second period concluded, Whitby countered with a goal to send both clubs into the intermission tied at 2-2.

The Clippers asserted themselves in the third period and their efforts paid off when they took a 3-2 lead with a goal from James Carlin.

With regulation time winding down, Whitby pulled their goalkeeper in favour of an extra attacker.

The Clippers took advantage of the empty net when Ben Partridge scored to put the game on ice.

Adrian McCartney collected two assists. Helping to preserve the win was the goaltending tandem of Thomas Morgan and Dalton Lehman, who shared duties in the contest.
