

Town invites residents to recycle their old electronics

Residents can drop off old electronics at municipal offices

If you've got any old, unused or unwanted electronics collecting dust, the town wants you to recycle them.

Whitchurch-Stouffville is holding an electronics waste recycling event on Saturday, Oct. 15, offering residents a chance to bring their old or unwanted items to town hall for collection.

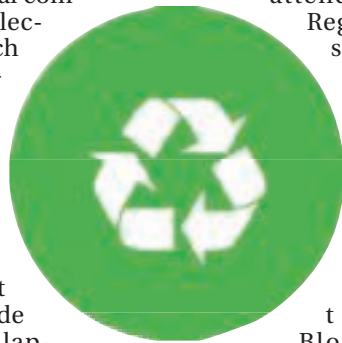

Electronics are banned from curbside collection, prompting residents to either go to one of York Region's waste depots or to special collection events.

Due to several components in electronic scrap, such as lead, cadmium or other heavy metals, e-waste is a hazard if not recycled properly.

Electronics accepted at town hall include computers, laptops, keyboards, mice, computer monitors, printers, audio equipment, cartridges, digital cameras, cellphones, fax machines and televisions.

The recycling event runs from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The Whitchurch-Stouffville Municipal Offices are at 111 Sandiford Dr. Collection will take place in the south parking lot.

If you're unable to attend, York

Region has seven waste depot locations where you can drop off your old or unwanted electronics:

Bloomington Yard Waste Depot, East Gwillimbury Household Hazardous Waste and Recycling Depot, Elgin Mills Community Environmental Centre, Georgina Transfer Station, Markham Household Hazardous Waste Depot, McCleary Court Community Environmental Centre and Vaughan Household Hazardous Waste Depot.
