Ontario's craft beer craze has seen micro-breweries popping up all over the province, including York Region.

- 1 Arch Brewing Co.
 Bill and Suzie King got their start in craft brewing, Dinner Jacket O'Red IPA, which sold well in the LCBO. The ruby coloured ale was a winner at the Ontario Brewing Awards in April. A couple of months earlier, the Kings opened a brewery in Newmarket, 110 Pony Dr., where they now produce an array of small-batch, handcrafted beers from ales to porters to stouts. You taste them at the brewery, which features a tap room and retail store. Tours are also available. For more, visit www.archbrewing.ca
- 2 Lake Wilcox Brewing Co.
 Founded by Richmond Hill residents Ray Nicolini and Dave DeCiantis, Lake Wilcox started with Mad

Quacker Vienna Amber Lager, which saw brisk sales through The Beer Store. They followed with Black Hops Belgian style IPA, while building a brewery in Vaughan, at 1033 Edgeley Blvd., which opened earlier this month. Now, Lake Wilcox has expanded its lineup with plans to offer about six main brands plus seasonal brews. You can sample them at the brewery, which boasts a taproom and retail store. 3 Magnotta Brewery
 Magnotta is synonymous with wine, but the firm has been brewing beer under the True North label since 1996. Located at 271 Chrislea Rd. in Vaughan, Magnotta has garnered numerous awards at the provincial and national level including Brewery of the Year at the Canadian Brewing Awards. Its lineup includes a cream ale, blonde lager, an IPA and a German-style whet beer. Earlier this year, it released Magnotta Original Craft Lager. Magnotta's brews are available at its retail store and in select Beer Stores. Complimentary tours are available. For more, visit www.magnotta.com
