Santa waves to the crowd at the Stouffville Santa Parade.

Santa Claus parade has route changed

It's been a bumpy road for the Stouffville Santa Claus Parade, but Santa's still coming to town.

The town has advised the parade organizers - The Kinsmen Club of Stouffville - that the parade will not be permitted to travel along the portion of road between Tenth Line and Stouffer Street.

Kinsmen member Bruce Smith told the Sun-Tribune that the town says the curbs, sidewalks and boulevards adjacent to Stouffer Street, Aintree Drive and Cam Fella Boulevard are unsafe for spectators.

As a result, the parade will begin at 2 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 3, on the corner of Millard Street and Stouffer - right on Main Street.

Floats will line up along Stouffer Street, Aintree Drive and Cam Fella Boulevard between 12:30 and 2:30 p.m., and Smith says to expect traffic disruption and congestion during that time. The Kinsmen Club says spectators will find suitable viewing locations on Main Street west of Stouffer Street.

The club has organized the parade for more than 20 years, member Steve Sutter says it brings the community together.

"It's a great time to see all the different floats from the community and you can meet all your neighbours," he said. "Get out there and see what Stouffville's all about."
