

Stouffville Family Brightens Holidays For SickKids

On Saturday, Dec. 13, the Debaissi family lit up their Reeves Way neighbourhood for the holiday season in support of Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children.

"In February 2012, our family was advised that our son had leukemia," said Ramsey Debaissi.

"We were devastated, but over the course of his treatment, we saw first hand how good the doctors, nurses and staff at the hospital were. Their compassion and caring, not only for our son, but our entire family, was second to none. We are so grateful and wanted to do something to give back to the hospital and our community, who has supported us over the years."

On Dec. 13, the Debaissi home was beautifully decorated and lit up, and the family organized a street festival, complete with parade floats and live music. The event raised about $6,000 for the hospital.

Their son, Adrian, is doing well, and they will continue to collect donations for SickKids over the Christmas season. Funds raised will support the Garron Family Cancer Centre.

In June 2013, Mr. Debaissi organized a car building event called Build for a Cause which raised over $21,926 for the hospital.

The Grinch adds his support to the Debaissi family fundraiser for SickKids.

Christmas revellers bring the spirit of the season to Stouffville at a local SickKids fundraiser Dec. 13.
