Gilbert Parker will visit Canada for the first time since his entry into political life, and he will be welcomed as one of Canada's representatives at Windsor, Mr. Parker has, as fully as any other Canadian resident in London, and much more fully than some, retained his interest in Canada and her affairs. He has recently made a purchased from an engraver by the name of Sandham, a fine collection of autograph portraits of the governors St. John, N.B., says: of New France, Acadia, Cape Breton and Canada. He has since supple mented this with other autographs and pertraits procured in London eries by portraits of the chief explor ers and other noted personages consected with early Canadian history. This will be a valuable addition to the already large collection of Cana fiana now in possession of Queen's university. It must be a matter of some pride to such an institution to possess something the like of which is not in existence, even in the ar chives of the dominion government. Nor can Mr. Parker's thoughtful generosity the too highly commended.
