Company Well Received-Julian Edwards' Comic Opera Bright and Interesting-Good Songs and Music.

The "standing-room" sign was eary hung out at the opening event in the opera house last night. The citizens were quite theatre-hungry, having been denied the pleasures of an upto date house for some years, and when the new play-house was said to be ready for opening, and a fine com pany had been engaged for the initi Doctors recommend it al performance, there was a rush for tickets. The attendance was quite a record-breaker and gladdened the heart of the genial lessee, A. J. Small

The house, though not quite finish al, was much admired. Its appoint ments are far ahead of the previous one, which served the citizens so well for about twenty years. The stage is ample and was set with charming effect. The drop curtain was a study The whole building was finely lighted. The ushers were expert in scating the people. It was a handsome and fashionable audience that watched the curtain go up at 8.20 o'clock.

Dainty "Dolly Varden" was a cap tivating operetta; the star Miss Lulu Glaser speedily won favor, in fact, costumed, animated and melodious. She added a charm to the lines and made it a really clever character study. The "Tale of the Cannibal Maid." had to be repeated. Her tran sition from the country girl to the city belle gave her scope of which full advantage was taken. Van Rensselaer Wheeler was a success as Dolly's lover, Capt. The stage settings for the opera were an structive feature and showed what advance, both in expense, acting and outfitting, had been made in recent years. The opera last night went off with a swing from start to finish, and every member of the chorus appeared to be thoroughly enjoying herself, ani mated, of course, by the occasion, the opening of Kingston's theatre. Every performer was quite delighted with the stage, its green room and acces

Manager Small is complimented his good selection for the opening. If he keep up this standard he need no fear that he will merit good support He is in touch with the best tour ing companies and his circuit is such that Kingston will share in all good things offered to the large Canadian cities. Kingston's tastes will soon be gauged and it is expected that the citizens will be delighted with the season's programme. It is quite likely that every week will have two or more attractions to command attention and interest.

To one who is observant the advance in theatrical and operatic dewas opened-and the writer attended crude, the scenery scant and unsuit Last night saw a complete change. An extravaganza was put on by a comparatively small, but highly efficient, company, with a chorus equal in volume and effects to all desires. The staging was effective and scenery admirable. The whole ensemble shows elevation in public taste, for modesty and good deportment marked every feature of the comic production. The orchestra was well inclance I and with a few meetings will same become the equal of any in the province. I'eople would enjoy a return appearance of the graceful, winsome and clever Lulu.
