THE WAY TO PROLONG LIFE.

LECTURE GIVEN IN TORONTO BY SIR JAMES GRANT.

Advocates Education as Only Way to Cure Liquor Curse—Does Not Favor Prohibition.

Toronto, Jan. 15.—Sir James Grant delivered a lecture on the subject "How to Live to Prolong Life," at Victoria university, last night, the lecture being in aid of the new residence for the convalescents. Dr. Grant, in the course of his remarks, referred to the drink evil, and said he agreed with Hon. Joseph Chamberlain that education was the only method of dealing with the root of this evil. A prohibition law, declared Sir James, would stimulate many to drink, who otherwise never would have drunk at all.
The doctor advised bringing the children up to the knowledge of the utter uselessness of taking liquor, to educate them also in not taking too much food, to give them ordinary food, to eat their diet, to rely upon the young people of the present generation will grow up equal to the occasion, and only use so much food and so much of any beverages as are absolutely necessary for the requirements of the system.

THE LATE JOHN ASHLEY.

Funeral Took Place On Tuesday—A Brief Sketch.

The funeral of the late John Ashley took place on Tuesday from the residence of his son-in-law, A. Chadwick, lower Union street, to Cataract cemetery. The service was conducted at the house by Rev. Dr. Phelan of St. Stephen's street Methodist church. The deceased was born in Kingston eighty-three years ago, his father, W. Ashley, who came out from England, being one of the early settlers of Kingston. The latter at one time lived in a small log house where McMahon's paint shop is now located, corner of Brock and Bagot streets, and he owned all the property in that district. He deceased was the last of a family of five boys and two girls.
In politics deceased was a liberal and in religion a Methodist. He was married here three score years ago to Catherine Grooms, who passed away about fifteen years ago. Surviving him are four children, viz., Frank, Waupoos, Ont.; Mrs. A. Chadwick, Union street; Mrs. Alice Chadwick, Brock street, and Mrs. William Hogan, Portsmouth. In his death one of the links between the past and present life of the old city has been broken. The deceased will be long remembered for his many amiable qualities, and a wide circle of friends will mourn his demise.

He even outstrips the biggest of the two "giants in helmets," Capt. Gill belongs to the 65th (Leicestershire) company of imperial yeomanry.

Irish Tobacco For Irish Duhdeens.
Tobacco has been grown in no fewer than twenty-five counties in Ireland and the leaves have been cut and dried and are now offered for sale. Its excellence for smoking is vouchsafed, and there seems no adequate reason why the weed should not boom contemporaneously with the new Irish literature. Quite possibly here and there the growing may bring wealth to the cultivators and eventually—who knows?—become the envy of the American trusts.
