The Land Kings With the Cry—Reform!

COMPLAIN OF BROKEN FAITH

SETH LOW CRITICISED OVER SALOON CLOSING.

Startling Figures Paid for Amusements—United States Good-Will to The German Emperor—Stretching The New Reform Law.

(Whig correspondence letter No. 1,288).

New York, Jan. 21.—Reform, reform, is the cry everywhere. The entire land rings with the cry; the car-bells are rung; the most singular point of the hour, reformers are as numerous as the sands on the seashore or the stars in the milky way, yet there are reformers that do not reform themselves more than they need any earthly thing.

The reform so long expected, so daily prayed for, is like the grey fatuous lies that we try to give to the world; it has neither shape nor substance; yet, like the ghost of Banquo, it will not go down. We ask ourselves, in what does reform consist? Our present realizations of reform are not what we expected; the host that followed the Reform "offshoot" into battle is scattered and gone; the shouts of the victors are silenced, and a cry of despair goes up from Tammany's defeated hosts. The dead speak not, but the doctory army of reform notices that they are neither dead nor sleeping.

A knockout blow is not a pleasant thing to take, and sometimes not a very pleasant thing to give, but saints and sinners now join in a common prayer and cry, for they are all members of the same church, and are complaining of broken faith, and that promise made before election are violated now. They were looking anxiously for the mayor's inauguration, when every saloon place of the Sabbath be closed through the length and breadth of Greater New York.

They are ready to swear on a stack of bibles that a direct promise was made by our new mayor that the saloons would be closed, to do so, that on the Lord's day, every saloon of the Greater New York, from Coney Island to the Bronx, should be shut up as tight as a drum. The inauguration took place, the mayor stood vested with the power of an autocrat; he could say to this one, Go, and he goes; and to another, Come, and he cometh. In Coney Island everything was open, nothing was closed, and so it was all along the line, at which all the reformers were sad. There was one element of reform, however, which deserves special praise, and that was the effort to put down gambling in this city. It was a burning curse upon our people. Bank clerks become defrauders; boys in their teens were made highway robbers; women stole their husbands' money and used it high and virtuous; station-robbed and defrauded, till in old age they reached their home in a prison. Our district attorney called forth with a little awe, and his back to the wall, this cry, "eye and leave it no foot to stand on, and although loaded down with his duties as a district attorney, which is enough work for a dozen men, he still finds time to give counsel to his old-time friend, Frank Moss, who has made the gamblers so uncomfortable that they have fled the city. We don't expect that we have got rid of them forever, but we expect to make them very unhappy with a loss of all their magnificent paraphernalia, worth thousands of dollars. But Frank Moss says that he will go for them once more, his motto being, "if at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

Looking over the list of national expenditures of the fiscal year, there is one astonishing item of persons amounting to nearly $135,000,000 for the year just closed. It is quite interesting to go to the pension offices and look over the list of pensioners. In a number of the most rebellious states of the south the pension list amounts to hundreds. Not long ago the pensioners in the war of 1812, and I think it must be within twenty years, numbered several hundred, and there were also several feet. The pension list, which ceased about one hundred and twenty years ago. With the very broadest extension of the nation's charity to their men who defended our liberties, $135,000,000 is a very large sum, and it goes on to prove that no compensation can be too large for the men who fought and bled, leaving a widow and orphan to the nation's care, when the husband and father had given up his life and who died that the nation might live.

While speaking of the national expenses the most startling figure are found in the sum we pay for our amusements. Just think of a class of entertainers who receive as much for their services in a single week as a farmer or laborer would earn in a long and laborious life. To many of our actors and opera singers $100 a night seems very small pay, while $1,000 a night is not an unusual demand for a first class singer. The beautiful and talented Bessie Abbott, the young American girl, who at "a single lesson" passed from a "village entertainer" in the city of New York, where she received a salary of $25 or $30 a week, to the grandest opera house in the world in the city of Paris, where she can now command $1,000 a night. Any kind of a respectable musician receives $500 or $500 a night and does not think himself over-paid at that, and they are not, if they draw the money. Theatrical managers are not very charitable persons, although they contribute more to general charity than any other profession or trade, but their engagements are strictly made on the capacity of the star to draw the money.

I suppose in speaking of amusements we may fairly class yacking as one of them, and one of the most expensive of its tribe. The German emperor has ordered a beautiful yacht here which will shortly be launched, and he has invited the daughter of princess Rogers to christen the royal vessel.
