CROWNED FROM TIME OF WIL-LIAM THE CONQUERER. Five of These Were Queens-Crown-an Untoward Character. (Copyright, 1902, by the National Press agency. Written by Charles Benham.) From William the Conqueror to Victoria comprises at most a matter of eight hundred years. Those eight centuries witnessed the crowning of no less than thirty-six English monarchs, of whom five were queens. The crownings of nearly all were marked by events and incidents of an untoward character, not by any means provided for in the official programmes; and to that extent nearly all more or less dethat extent nearly all more or less de-have been recorded are to-day generally familiar. The coronation service was abridged, a precedent which king Edward has wisely resolved to follow. The day was changed from June 26th to June 28th, to avoid the anniversal to June 28th, to avoid the a
