KEPT BEES IN HIS PARLOR.

Clements Didn't Know It Until

They Stung Him. Rochester, N.Y., Feb. 10,-For some time past bees have been annoying the family of James R. Clements. Every day or so a bee would crawl out of the opening made for one of the sliding doors between the sitting room and the parlor, Lazily poising itself, the bee would fly about the by a slap from the paim of Mr. Cle ments or somebody else in the house. But another bee would come forth and take the place of the slaughtered one. It finally dawned upon Mr. Clements that he was keeping bees in his house. The discovery made no particular impression on him until the other day when one of them Hot water was thereupon procured, and the spot whence the bees issued was deluged with it, but hot water was a failure so far as concerns the extermination of the bees. So were other devices for circumventing insect marauders in the homes of men. While Mr. Clements was till hot upon the trail of the bees, another member of the family came into contact with one of the small disturbers, and, after a brief struggle, although the bee was destroyed, a couple of pieces of furniture were sacrificed and the happiness of the family was disturb-That night carpenters were sent for, and upon the day following there was a sound of loud hammering and ripping and tearing of wood, Mr. Ciements, from another part, of the house, directed the attack. The workmen tore away a couple of partitions and then discovered that a whole swarm of bees had taken up its abode there. Many had perished, but still there was a large, active contingent, and they resisted the intrusion. But sweet were the fruits of "Honey; bushels of it !" shouted one of the carpenters, tearing into the room where Mr. Clements was sitting Further investigation, after the bees had bee driven away, showed the presence of thirty pounds of delicious honey. It cost Mr. Clements $185 to

Apple Hill, Ont., Feb. 11,-While Mr. Haves, owner of the creamery here. was taking out ice in the creek on Friday, he found a beautiful specimen of the "kissing bug," which was quite lively when he took it from the water. He put it on a cake of jee while finishing his load, and when he came to examine it again it was frozen. He brought it to the village, and gave it to Mr. Johnson, the C.P.R. agers, who now has it on exhibition in seen in this section, being over three, inches in length with wings folded Mr. Johnson thought to resuscitate it by putting it into a basin of cold water. It did not come to life, but a large drop of green, poisonous looking stuff oozed from its mouth, which Mr. Johnson promptly threw out and then rinsed the basin with a solution of
