Ms. G. Bruce, a noted opera singer, escaped an operation for ovarian troubles. From that many operations for ovarian troubles are unnecessary. Her health was restored by Dr. J. C. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash.

T. I. PARK POINTERS.

River Frozen Over Everywhere—Death of a Girl. Thousand Island Park, Feb. 24. Our mails are still very irregular, due to the severe straits to the south of here. The ice bridge is good at any place on the river in this locality, and especially between Fine View and Fisher's Landing, which is generally open. Quite a number from the park and Fine View attended the funeral on Sunday afternoon of Grace, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram C. Pennington, of Fisher's Landing, who died on Friday last. Deceased was fifteen years of age. Interment was made at Omar, N.Y. A social dance at the home after a trip to Adams Centre, where Mr. and Mrs. Pennington, made the park a visit on Thursday. A large quantity of coal has been drawn to this locality lately, the unusually severe weather having exhausted the supply on hand. A social dance will be held at the Foresters Hall, Fine View, on February 28th several parties are drawing wood to the park for the use of cottagers during the summer. Several large and fine trees have been cut from Clayton for the Columbian. Norman Fox, LaFargville, has removed to the park, and is going to add a wing to his cottage. Jay J. Gardner has built a number of shacks and will now build a number of shacks. O. Kenyon and family are removing from the Robbins farm to the mainland.

Victor Hugo Commemoration.

Paris, Feb. 26.—Not since the remains of the great Napoleon were brought from St. Helena and buried in the Invalides has France paid a more spontaneous or a more marked tribute to the memory of one of her most famous men than that of today when the attention of all France was centered in the celebration of the Victor Hugo centenary. The programme lasted all day, beginning in the forenoon with the unveiling of the Hugo monument in the Square des Vosges and concluding to-night with a reception at the Hotel de Ville and a gala performance of "Les Burgraves" at the Comedie Francaise. President Loubet, M. Waldeck-Rousseau and other officials of the government, together with a notable array of writers, scientists, artists and representatives of foreign military societies, participated in the various ceremonies. During the afternoon there was a musical concert at the Grand Theatre, where Hugo's tomb was almost hidden beneath the mass of floral emblems deposited there by his admirers.

THE STUDENT VOLUNTEER

MOVEMENT NOW IN CONVENTION AT TORONTO.

Over 2,500 Delegates Present From Canada, United States, China, India, Etc.—The Subject of Missions In The Colleges—Able Speakers Present.

Toronto, Ont., Feb. 26.—Seldom if ever has Toronto been called upon before to entertain so large and important a gathering as the four international conventions of the student volunteer movement, which formally opened to-day and will continue in session through the remainder of the week. The city has responded to the call by throwing wide open its doors and extending its hospitality to the delegates who have come from the four quarters of the globe to listen to men in the field and receive new inspiration in their mission work.

The delegates number 2,500 and come from not only all parts of the United States and Canada, but from European countries, from China, Japan, South Africa, India and Ceylon. They include foreign missionaries, editors of religious papers and representatives of various young people's societies and of scores of the highest institutions of learning.

An interesting and attractive programme has been prepared for the convention. The meetings are held in Massey music hall, the largest auditorium in Toronto. At the five evening sessions some of the ablest missionary speakers of the world are to be heard. A part of each day is to be devoted to the consideration of the promotion of missionary interest in the colleges, the financial problem of missions, extension and development of the student volunteer movement and the responsibility resting upon clergymen and laymen in view of the concentration of students to world-wide evangelization.

The student-volunteer movement has introduced the subject of missions into the colleges, and has aroused an interest among the students that leads many to take up the work on the mission field. It supplies missionary libraries, courses of reading on mission topics, missionary meetings are held, and perhaps what is the most important work under its auspices, hundreds of students every summer travel from church to church through the country presenting the cause of missions. The first convention of the movement was held at Cleveland in 1891, the second met in 1894 at Detroit, and the third at Cleveland again in 1898. Two conventions of like character have met in Great Britain, in Liverpool in 1898, and in London in 1900.

Jaquith—Emerson.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at Wilton on Thursday, February 20th, by Rev. D. C. Day, when Miss Mabelle Boughton, only daughter of Mrs. E. T. Emerson, was married to Dr. Walter A. Jacquith, Chicago. Only the immediate relatives and friends were present. The bride was prettily attired in pearl grey covert cloth, trimmed with violet velvet, and white taffeta and lace. Her going-away gown was black broad cloth, with a black and blue waist and a black and blue tulle. After partaking of the wedding breakfast the happy couple left, amid showers of rice, for Kingston, where they took the afternoon train for Hamilton. After spending a few days with friends there they will proceed to their future home, 5700 Indiana avenue, Chicago, where they will be "At Home" after March 15th.

"H. Trvatore" Monday Night.

In speaking of the company, the Pittsburgh, Pa., Gazette says: "This is the first appearance in Pittsburgh of the Boston lyric opera company, and the impression they made was certainly a good one. There are fifty members of the company and if judgment is to be made from last night's performance they are all artists. The company is really better than the stock company which presented a series of light operas at the Duquesne garden last summer and compares favorably to the English grand opera company of Maurice Grau which appeared last season."

Watching For The Bodies.

The C.M.B.A., No. 9, of this city, communicated with the C.M.B.A. societies of Goderich and vicinity, asking them to be on the lookout for the bodies of the Kingdon sailors who lost their lives by the Marine City disaster of November last. A reply has been received stating that a careful watch has been instituted along the coast for some miles around Goderich. It is expected that the bodies would have been washed near the shore, and frozen in the ice, so that if found by the spring they will be in good condition.

Violet Affairs.

Violet, Feb. 25.—Mr. and Mrs. Tinker (formerly Miss Dora Richards), Bancroft, paid the village a flying call on their honeymoon trip to Ottawa. Miss Lillie Wood has returned home after a three weeks visit in Hamilton. Mr. and Mrs. Lund, Morven, were visiting their daughter, Mrs. E. Sharp, on Sunday last. Dr. A. Adair was the guest of his sister at Amberst Island last Sunday. Mrs. H. Day, Odessa, is visiting here.

Chaffey's Lock.

Chaffey's Lock, Feb. 25.—W. Lashley and family have returned after spending a few days at Phillipsville. Fleming is filling his ice house. T. F. Gray will leave for his chug factory at Glen Norman about March 15th.

They Didn't Enjoy It.

On the back of a programme picked up after the matinee performance of "The Little Minister," at the opera house on Saturday, were written the following words: "Do you enjoy the perfume of onions, second hand? If so, just turn your face towards the lady behind you."

SENSATION CAUSED

By British Withdrawals From Russian Circles.

London, Feb. 26.—Some sensation has been caused in Anglo-Russian trade circles by the sudden withdrawal of Lord Avebury and the lord mayor of London from the support of the exhibition of British art and industries, which has been arranged under the patronage of the czar, to be held at the Taurida palace, in St. Petersburg, from June to September. It is the intention to apply the profits to building homes for the poor of St. Petersburg. Countess Schouvaloff and other influential Russian ladies constitute the Russian committee. The British committee includes many prominent persons. The reasons for their action seem unconvincing, and would have been open to question before they consented to give their support as now. The affair is regarded as mysterious. There is supposed to be some connection between it and the refusal just given by the commission of English agriculturists to visit St. Petersburg and Moscow as the guests of the Russian agricultural society.

English Labor Leader Dead.

New York, Feb. 26.—The English mails arriving this week brought news of the death of James Mawdsley, for many years one of the foremost labor leaders in England, sharing equal honors in that respect with John Burns and Keir Hardie. The intelligence was received with regret by the English laboring community here. Mr. Mawdsley was well known, having visited this country several years ago as a fraternal delegate from the British trades union congress to the convention of the American federation of labor.

Mr. Mawdsley made his reputation as general secretary of the amalgamated society of operative cotton spinners. Born about fifty years ago at Preston, he commenced work as a mill-hand at the early age of nine. He continued work in the mills for twenty years—improving his education during his leisure hours.

Almost alone among trades union leaders Mr. Mawdsley was an avowed convert to the cause of the laborer, and that his union was the best organized and most powerful in England. Rough in speech and manner he was intensely clever and alive to the interests of his class, and his acute personal and political sagacity and organization are sure to be greatly missed by the working men of Great Britain.

Busy Day For Prince Henry.

New York, Feb. 26.—This was another exceedingly busy day for Prince Henry. The greater part of the time was taken up in sight-seeing of the local interest of the mammoth office buildings, spacious parks, monuments and particularly the historical sites of the city, eliciting many expressions of surprise and admiration from the prince and his suite. At noon the party rounded up at Sherburne, where the prince was escorted by leading business men and financiers, among the number being J. Pierpont Morgan, William Rockefeller, William K. Vanderbilt and Abram S. Hewitt. After the dinner the tour of sight-seeing was resumed, to be continued until evening, when the prince proceeds to Arion hall to review the parade of the German-American societies of greater New York. The greatest affair of the king ever seen by the metropolis. It will be a torchlight parade and the participants will include all of the German singing, gymnastic, shooting and sports societies of New York and vicinity.

Be Loyal To Our Own.

The Grilla board of trade has passed the following resolution: "Whereas newspapers and magazines from the office of publication pass between the United States and Canada at the present rates of the postage, and whereas such charges would do much to foster a sentiment of imperial unity; to encourage immigration from the mother country to Canada, and to promote inter-industrial trade; Resolved, therefore, that this board of trade of the town of Orillia, considers that in the best interests of Canada, Great Britain, and the empire, the postage on newspapers and periodicals should be reduced to a point where there would no longer be any discrimination in favor of the United States."

Two Orders Received.

Kingston Supplying Flour And Fodder For British Troops. It is an ill wind, indeed, that does not blow somebody good. The war in South Africa has resulted in bringing to two local contractors orders for supplies in the field. The Frontenac Flour Company has received from the imperial war office, through the dominion government, an order for 100 tons of flour. A further order of 300 tons, making a total of 400 tons, had to be refused because the conditions could not be complied with. The conditions were that the flour must be delivered at St. John, N.B., this week; had the time been named to next week, the order would have been accepted.

Delay No Longer.

Your health is getting worse every day, this cough threatens you with consumption. Throw it out without respect. Don't you stand this bronchitis either, this asthma of this catarrh; they are dangerous guests. To get rid of them immediately take Morin's Creso-Phates Wine.

The New Manhattan and Waldorf

Richardson Bros. have also received a contract to supply 1,200 tons of pressed hay to the troops in South Africa. The firm had to refuse a further order on account of the limited time given for shipment. The hay is very solidly compressed, 100 pounds being squeezed into a space eighteen inches square. The hay is done up in 200 pound packages, which are only thirty-six inches square. The hay is pressed by hydraulic power, and when it comes out in bales it resembles chaffing tobacco.

Kruger's Securities Sold.

Paris, Feb. 26.—Securities valued at 5,000,000 francs (81,000,000), belonging to president Paul Kruger, have recently been sold here. The money will be spent in furthering the Boer propaganda in Europe and America.

TAKEN SHAME ON HERSELF

A WOMAN'S NOBLE SELF-SACRIFICE.

A Young Woman Who Nobly Stood By Her Father Tells Her Story in Court.

London, Feb. 26.—A pathetic story of noble self-sacrifice in which a young woman voluntarily forfeited her honor to save that of her father, was told at North London yesterday, when a little girl named Ann Adams was charged with being of such a disposition as to be beyond the control of her guardian.

Miss Sarah Graham said she had kept the secret for ten years, but now it was bound to be told. Ann Adams was an illegitimate child of her father (now dead), and in order to save her father trouble and disgrace she had taken the shame upon herself.

But the girl, ignorant of the circumstances under which she had been brought into the world, did not appreciate her guardian's loving care. She showed no gratitude, and wandered about the streets, getting both herself and her foster-mother into trouble. She appeared to be altogether unmanageable—obedient, dishonest, and mischievous—and actually bored holes in the roller of the mangle to make it useless. She would like the girl to be sent to a home for her own sake, though she was loth to part with her.

"I have kept the child's secret until now, but it is impossible, under the circumstances, to do so any longer."

Mr. Fortham thought Miss Graham had behaved nobly towards the child, and could not be expected to do more. The child was sent to one of the reformatory homes, pending the finding of a school for her.

His Ignorance.

A Scottish member of parliament was not complimented lately when he was addressing the body in the House of Commons, that he was not an idle member of the house and that during the last two years he had put no less than 182 questions to the speaker and the members of the government. "What an ignorant ass he is!" cried a voice from the crowd.

Punished.

Mamma—Oh, Ronald, who opened the canary's cage? Ronald—I did. You told me a little bird was a-wiping its eye when I was naughty, so I knew it must be him, as there was no other little bird about. So I opened the cage, and the cat's eaten him. That's what he got for telling on me."

Correct Quotation.

If you must quote, do quote correctly. Is the pen mightier than the sword? Thousands say or print. "The pen is mightier than the sword." He assured him that he was not an idle member of the house and that during the last two years he had put no less than 182 questions to the speaker and the members of the government. "What an ignorant ass he is!" cried a voice from the crowd.

Respect the rule of men entirely great. The pen is mightier than the sword. This rule has been collected over and over again, but those who misquote seldom read what they are pretending to quote, but quote from a man who quoted from another man who—and so on. In many books will be found long lists of these prevalent misquotations.

UNDER DISCUSSION.

A Bill To Amend The Interpretation Act.

Ottawa, Feb. 26.—The introduction of Mr. Monk's bill to amend the Interpretation Act was about the most interesting subject with which parliament had to deal yesterday. The bill particularly appeals to the view of the province of Quebec in people of the private council's judgment overruling the decision of the Quebec court in the case of Roy vs. C.P.R. The bill seeks to make it clear that federal charters are subject to the civil laws of the provinces.

T. C. Casgrain made some pertinent remarks on the advisability of improving the Canadian patent laws. The remainder of the session was taken up with the consideration of Hon. Mr. Fisher's estimates. Some invaluable information was elicited on the question of small-pox expense, and until 11:30 there was no lack of talk in the commons.

Mr. Ingram introduced a bill respecting the Canada Southern railway company. Mr. Fisher made the announcement that he had been authorized by council to accept the invitation to Canada to take part in the exhibition in St. Louis in 1903. Asked by Mr. Sprule, what has been done with the Canadian building at Buffalo, Mr. Fisher said he had sold it. Questioned further, he said he did not remember how much he had obtained for it; practically, he had given it away.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Premier Ross and Mr. Whitney Have a Heated Argument.

Toronto, Feb. 26.—Just before the regular business of the house was taken up this afternoon, Hon. G. W. Ross rose and complained of the statements which Mr. Whitney had made at the recent banquet about the government sending emissaries to Mr. Whitney regarding subsidies and certain legislation, and asking his position on these questions. The premier denied that such had been done. He said that if such men had gone to Mr. Whitney they had no authority for doing so. Mr. Ross knew of no instance where Mr. Whitney's position had been asked on subsidies or legislation.

Mr. Preston, of South Brant made a personal explanation of his having received a payment from the government for printing, stating that it was done entirely without his knowledge, and that the work had been ordered by the western dairymen's association. The evening session was largely taken up with a discussion on railway discriminations, on an amendment to the motion to go into supply.

The premier intimated, in reply to Mr. Whitney, that it was not probable that he would be ready to move the second reading of the prohibition bill on Thursday.

At the Dime Museum. "Passing on now to the next platform, ladies and gentlemen," said the lecturer, "permitted me to call your attention to the dead snake, probably the greatest curiosity in the known world. This snake, you perceive, ladies and gentlemen, has a head at each end of the body. In consequence of this he is compelled to exhibit it as a dead snake."

"The mouths were equally ravenous. Each brain worked independently of the brain at the other extremity; hence the snake was always working contrary to the other half, and when the mouth at one extremity was about to seize some morsel of food it would find itself jerked away from the morsel by the other half, which would be some equally tempting morsel of food. The snake being too thick and strong in the middle to be torn apart, thus permitting each half to lead a separate and untrammelled existence, there was nothing for the poor creature to do but to starve to death, which it accordingly did."

"This shows, ladies and gentlemen, that it is absolutely essential that both heads shall be on one end."

Animals in People's Inside. In the Leeds Intelligencer for July 20, 1880, Dr. Gardner, the inventor of the universal medicines in the form of pills, plaster and ointment, was advertising his arrival in Leeds and was exhibiting worms and other creatures of which he said that men's bodies "are pores and man nor any body of men upon earth can deny." His exhibits, which could be seen at the doctor's lodgings, 8, St. Peter's square, included two unknown creatures, one like a lizard, the other has a mouth like a piece, (sic) a horn like a small, two ears like a mouse and its body covered with hair. It was destroying the man's liver, a portion of which it has brought off with it."

FLASHES OF BOWERY WIT.

Some Odd Signs Seen on This Metropolitan Thoroughfare. Along the Bowery are dozens of windows where are displayed unredempted pledges, trinkets or valuables that have strayed from all quarters into these eddies of commerce. Sometimes a melancholy interest attaches to these things, but the pawnbroker is a foe to melancholy. Therefore he puts humorous placards upon his wares to catch the eye and evoke a smile, for a good humored man is a better customer than a gloomy one.

One window displays a cobwebbed skull bearing a placard that says: "There are 1,000 skulls in existence said to be Oliver Cromwell's. This is not one of them. We need no more." Further along a skull is displayed which is said to have belonged to "Pinky," whose body was entirely consumed in Venus.

A large leg bone is advertised as "good enough to do for you if ever yours is broken." Watches give the Bowery humorist a splendid field. One of them bears a ticket bidding the passer "buy me if you have a better time." Another confesses that "slow horses did this—made him paw me for $25."
