OUR MOTTO: PURE MILK,

WE HAVE BEEN IN BUSINESS FOR SI months, and as we now control three quarters of the milk business of the City, and as our business is daily increasing, we are quite gratified with the result of our efforts. We desire to thank our patrons for past favors, and to solicit a continuation of their patronage. From those citizens who are not on our books we take only a trial.

As the warm weather will soon be coming on we have decided to resume the delivery of milk in bottles on Monday next, March 3rd. It was with much regret that we gave the bottle system at the commencement of winter, but we were obliged to do so because of the frost, and we felt that in sold weather it was not a matter of so much moment to our patrons and to ourselves. We have now made arrangements by which we expect to be able to continue the delivery of milk in bottles throughout the whole

The treasury officials are at a loss to understand the grossly insulting and revolutionary conduct of collecttor Ivey. A few weeks ago Lieut. Jarvis of the revenue cutter service, who won fame in the winter of 1898-99 by leading the government rescue expedition to Point Barrow, on the Arctic ocean, and who is one of the best informed men on Alaskan affairs, was appointed collector at Sitka by president Roosevelt. The collection district covers the whole territory of Alaska, which is about one-sixth as large as the rest of the United States and the office is, therefore, important, It is supposed that Ivey resented the appointment of a successor, and that this is the cause of his defying both the federal authority and the terms of our foreign treaties. TEACHERS' FAMINE.

Boards Of Britain.

London, March 3.-It has become he usage lately to describe a shortage of any kind as a "famine." At the present time the London school board is suffering from the strangest kind of "famine." It wants scores of women teachers, but cannot get them. The trouble has arisen over the salary question. Some time ago the board reduced the minimum yearly salary to £80 ($400) from £85. This was the last straw on the burden of many previous grievances, and the teachers decided to look for more remunerative employment elsewhere: Most of them have turned their attention to the civil service, while others have gone to towns that offer better inducements than the London board. Even Blair, in some of the suburban departments women teachers receive larger salaries than are paid here. To show the strange conditions that exist, it might be noted that recently fifty vacancies for women teachers in the Tower Hamlets were advertised. but only four applications for positions were received. Therefore those women who are wise in their generation go elsewhere to teach, or else, with their undoubt ed qualifications, take up some other work, particularly in the civil service departments.

Meanwhile the school management committee is in a quandary. Advertisements for teachers in outside towns in England have not been productive of results, and it would appear as if some schools ill have to be closed or the salaries of the women teachers raised.
