It Was An Easy and General Topic For Discussion But Far the Leaders Have No Evidence to Sustain Charges.

There were several addresses given at the Frontenac conservatives' meeting on Saturday afternoon. Dr. Edwards declared that the popular vote was in favor of the conservatives, but the grits, with the aid of their machine and money, managed to remain the speaker, are the enemies of the J. S. Then, if the the affairs of the province, let thembe put out. Mr. Gaffagher told his hearers that the best men in Ontario legislature were sitting on the opposition benches, without being given a hance to show their talents, and there were enough among them to fill three or four cabinets, i.e., four out of every five were qualified to be ministers of the crown.

Referring to the premier, Mr. Gallagher declared he was on the fence, and afraid of his prohibition bill. The temperance people, the speaker thought, would assist in defeating the Ross government. As to himself he wanted to be elected by a sweeping majority, as that gave a member more influence. He hoped that success would be the fate of the conservative party this time. H. A. Calvin, M.P., said that would not discourse upon the inquities of the Ontario government, as everybody knew about its wickedness. He pointed out that the people did not appreciate the importance of Ontario's forests, from which one-third of the provincial revenue was derived. Was enough being got from these forests, he asked? He could not tell, himself. Quebee's revenue from her forests last year, he said, was more than

MINISTER OF MARINE.

Mr. Sutherland's Success in Putting Through Estimates. The unprecedented speed with which the dominion house has passed the estimates of the marine and fisheries department is the talk of the lobbies. This is Mr. Sutherland's first session as minister of marine and fisheries, but he had posted himself so thoroughly, touching the appropriations asked for by his department, was so well prepared with explanations, and responded so readily to the opposition's desire for information, that in the short space of five and a half lours estimates to the amount of over a million and a half of dollars were passed. The fact that Mr. Sutherland preserves his serenity and allows nothing to ruffle his temper partly accounts for the ease with which his estimates went through. It is also apparent that he is bent upa making his administration of the marine department a marked success. A Winter's Tale.

The winter now drawing to a close, has, like the proverbial rural tea meeting, been a great success. It has been as steady as the most rabid temperance reformer, and as continuous as the man who daily passes into the drinking house for his drop. The winter began just as soon as the arrival of December was announced, and the three months following, there were not more than half a dozen mild day until last week. A steady winter in deed! The thermometer did not drop as low as in past winters, but the clinging of the mercury around the zero mark for days and weeks amplimade up for that.
