SUCCESS OF A BOOK.

David Harum, the product of a man who wrote during his illness, and about the only legacy he left to his family, has had a most remarkable run, and is called "the most phenomenal book of the age."

What is the secret of its success? It is interesting and instructive in its contents. It presents some characters which find their counterpart in the men and women of the day.

The book, too, has had the advantage of a rare advertising by the press and people, and its popularity has been further enhanced by dramatization in a very successful way.

SCANDALS OF THE MAIL.

By the Kingston Whig the discussion of Premier Ross' charge of $1,848.17 for his holiday trip in England is continued.

Comparisons are usually odious, and they are especially so in this case. Time changes the attitude of persons and parties towards a given subject.

The Manitoba government has assumed former liabilities amounting to a million and a half in connection with the Canadian Northern railway.

As for the references to Mr. Sifton, they are simply disgraceful. Since his call to the government at Ottawa he has been the object of torrid venom and tory malignancy without a parallel.

Captured His Own Convoy. Pictou, N.S., March 2.—One of the old things of campaign and election, writes Bennett Burleigh, the correspondent of the London Times.

most elegant establishment at the capital. A more disreputable criticism of a public man has not appeared in print, and the Mail ought to be thoroughly ashamed of it.

MEN THAT CAN'T LEAD.

The Tory, the conservative paper which has been provided with a specific purpose—namely the illumination of the party leaders—has been obliged to sacrifice Mr. Borden. It does so on these terms:

It is certainly depressing to contemplate the result of the dominion by-elections which was so disappointing to all conservatives, and so discreditable to the leaders of the party. It developed an amazing lack of political intelligence in quarters where political intelligence was supposed to exist and should have been found.

EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

The legislative committee made short work of the municipal law amendments which were proposed by the Hamilton and Toronto councils.

Can Chinese exclusion be enforced? Can a tax upon them be made so high as to become practically prohibitive? That is the question about which the British may have occasion to say something.

Toronto is a favorite stamping ground for the bank swindlers. The officials up there appear to be of the very confiding, verdant sort.

A firm of architects claim that they have discovered something new in school ventilation. It is to be hoped they have, Kingston's schools have suffered, and are still suffering, from the ventilating schemes that prevailed in the past.

The Canadian press association will not sink into insignificance under the leadership of Mr. McGillicuddy, of Goderich. Dan has a tongue and a pen which he knows how to use.

The Montreal Star presents a sensible suggestion when it says in the table of precedence at the table of social or state functions should be abolished, so that squabbling among the clergy as to the places they should occupy cease. The clamouring of the church for distinction has become a scandal.

The Hamilton Herald is curious-minded. It wants to know, from Whig, what the British North American act is for? The Whig answers, in guidance, generally, until something better can be obtained. The men drafted it, however, could not for the events of the future, and like old things it would be the better revision.

The Toronto teacher who wanted to instruct his public school class in German was told by the school that it was not his business to teach a language which he did not understand.

THE AFFAIRS OF THE HOUR. Prof. McNaughton Remarks About The Stage.

Prof. McNaughton, of Queen's, addressed the men's meeting in the Y.M.C.A. building yesterday afternoon, speaking on half and individual responsibility. During the course of his address he referred to the stage of this country, saying that it was far behind that of England and Germany.

In Sight Of The Promised Land. In British church yesterday morning, Mr. Morrison gave his speech in course on the Israelites' experience as typical of the experiences of God's children of to-day.

It was a Promised Land for hundreds of years before God had promised it to Abraham and his seed for an everlasting inheritance. With what feelings of joy and gratitude should they have looked upon the finest land on all the earth?

It is a strange conduct of God's people of old a parallel in our own lives? Have not many of us been oft-times conscious of God's power being exercised in our behalf?

Church Items. Owing to the rain the church services yesterday were sparsely attended. Especially was this the case at morning services.

In the absence from the city yesterday of Benjamin Arthur, organist of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, John Keyner presided at the organ in that church at both services yesterday.

Canon Macmorine has recovered from his illness and was able to occupy his accustomed place in the pulpit of St. James' church last evening, delivering a sermon upon the contract of Lenten season. The congregation were glad to welcome him back again.

A church member writes: At a church service last night, was greatly struck with the beautiful contrast between the sentiment of a hymn and the tune sung to it. The former was "Spirit of Faith Come Down, Reveal the Things of God. To this hymn of adoration the tune was a specially written for a hymn of death, and always associated with such. I could not help but notice that the tune in no way corresponded to the words.
