Lennon's incompetence, Mr. Hewitt said, was due to drink. From his own personal knowledge, he said that Leanon was not discharging his duties in a satisfactory manner. Lennon was supposed to be at the pumping station from six o'clock in the evening till seven o'clock in the morning. Previous committee chairmen, the superintendent said, had received complaints about Lennon who had been suspended years ago under the orders of chairmen Gildersleeve and McKel-

She always sat in the boiler room when her husband ate his supper at ten o'clock. She denied ever this expense by the taroiness of the shovelling coal into the fire Her husband, she declared, was never drunk on duty.

Mr. Lennon gave testimony in his own behalf. He entered the water works employment in 1872. All the charges of being under the influence of iquor on duty he genied. Re-Organization Is Necessary. The Lennon investigation brought out the fact that re-organization is badly needed at the water works. Past committees have been very neglectful in not placing things n a better running order. More au thority must be given the superintene concerned, the trouble to be afterwards dealt with by the committee Then the duties of the chief engineer must be clearly defined, and finally hours fixed for all those connected with the works.
