Not A Baby, But A Ham. While cutting ice around the steamer North King, Capt. Thomas Clancy struck a box with his pike pole, and brought it to the surface. The discoverer was sure he had captured the chest of gold for which he has explored the bottom of the harbor for years After gazing at the box with a smile of satisfaction, Thomas became aware that a strange odor was coming from the supposed treasure chest. He decid ed that a coroner was the man who should possess the find, but first made careful investigation. However, he didn't find a dead baby as he expected, but only a decayed ham.

SHIELDS' STATEMENT.

He Could Give No Facts For The

Halifax, N.S., March 13.-Cornelius Shields, general manager of the Dominion coal company, was asked as to the truth of the statement sent out from Montreal to the effect that the company's profits for the present year would reach at least $2,000,000, and that dividends of six per cent, on the bonds, and eight per cent, on the preferred stock would be paid. He replied that the statement did not emanate from him. He knew nothing about the dividends of the company and was not interviewed on the subject when in Montreal. Questioned regarding the statements that a vast deposit, containing over a billion tons of coal, had been located on the company's areas, Mr. Shields said he had read a telegram from Cape Breton, while in Montreal, reporting a discovery which, if true, would increase the value of the company's coal areas greatly, but he would not
