KILLING OF JOHN B. HULL, A TRAVELLING MAN.

After Killing One Who Wrong-Above Reproach.

Ackerman, Miss., March 14 .- One of the most sensational murder trials that has ever occurred in Mississippi has been in progress here. The case John?" is the state vs. Dr. Joe T. Ware, of "John Starkville, for the killing of John B. "And I'll pay my rent promptly, Hull, a travelling salesman, which oc-Hull, a travelling salesman, which occurred at the depot here a year ago.

The state made a strong case against the defendant, showing that as Hull was attempting to board the west-bound morning passenger train, Dr. Ware came out of the smoking car and, seeing Hull, drew his pistol. Hull, seeing the drawn pistol, said:

"Don't do that, let me explain, let me reason with you," and then turned and began to flee for his life; that as seen as Hull turned Dr. Ware shot are we, John?"

The defence claims that Dr. Ware was notified by Miss Jack Ware, his sister, that she had been betrayed by WEDDING OF NOTE, Hull under the promise of marriage, and that she desired Hull brought to The justice, and that Dr. Ware immediately started in pursuit of Hull, going first to Artesia and afterwards to West Point. Afterwards, hearing that Hull was at this place, he started to Ackerman on the first train, and as he was getting off the train he met Hull and said, "Throw up your hands; you are my prisoner; you have ruined my sister," his intention being to arrest Hull under section 1,375 of the code, which permits any private citizen to arrest a felon. In this state secuction is a felony. Instead of Hull surrendering he turned to flee, and to prevent his escape was shot by the defendant.

The state objected to the evidence of seduction and the further defence that Ware was attempting to arrest Hull, but judge Stevens held that the defence, while novel, was perfectly competent both under the English common law and under the above statute. This defence has never before been made in Mississippi, so far as any reported case shows.

The state, in its rebuttal testimony, tried to prove that Miss Ware was Giles county : Some time since Agnes previously of unchaste character and consequently was not betrayed by a newspaper advertisements for lady Hull, which proof was met by the de- correspondents and, hoping to add fence by testimony of the county offi- some spice to her rural life, opened cers of Oktibbeha county, where she correspondence with half a dozen lived, and by quite a number of youths.
