OVER THE TEA CUPS.

Such an array of pretty hats as we have seen this week! The approach of Easter has hastened the millinery openings, and all the dainty spring finery has already been seen and approved of by scores of interested women and girls.

Crumley's was the first place we visited, and there we had our initial lesson in the spring styles for 1902. The hats were lovely, particularly the black and whites and the all blacks, but there were colored ones galore for those who preferred the brighter headgear. In the show case was a Dolly Varden, a facsimile of that worn on the stage by

"Dainty Dolly, Dolly Varden, Fairer than a summer garden."

and beside it was another somewhat fantastic but altogether bewitching picture hat in pure white, with a sea foam brim and trimmed with pearls and white ostrich plumes. Miss Quinn was obligingly untiring in trying on all the pretty models for our inspection, and she was a living illustration of the old saying, "Anything becomes a fair face," for each suited her so perfectly that the hats took on an additional grace when she looked out from beneath them, and more than one visitor remarked upon this feature of Crumley's millinery opening. As for the styles themselves; we noticed the draped brim on very many of the hats and toques. Soft and becoming it is whether in chiffon or lace, and one very smart model of this sort was made of fine, unbleached linen. Capuchins are on the majority of the hats, those huge button affairs in pearls or jets or odd fancies, and these in many cases are set inthe centre of the coachman's rosette, which latter is another of the distinctive novelties of the season. Aigrettes are very much in evidence, too bad is it not, when there is so much else to choose from, but there must be the demand when the supply is so great, for the shops only cater to the popular taste, and if the women don't want aigrettes the milliners won't buy them. However, there they are, and this is an enumeration of the spring novelties, not a side talk on "Shall we wear aigrettes or not?"

Looking around for popular shades, the leaning seemed to be towards reseda, old rose, pale blue and castor, but, as was said before, the smartest hats were black or black and white, and there was a great variety, particularly in black and white, at Crumley's. In going out we stopped to admire the ribbon roses made by Miss Quinn—they are for hats, for hair ornaments, or for wearing on bodices, and are called Du Barry bow the "bow" being the June flowers.

Steacy's opening was on Wednesday morning, too, and we visited their show rooms next, meeting there with hosts of acquaintances who were making their way through the millinery openings starting down town first and up to Crumley's, while the up-town people reversed the order, and ended up at Steacy's. Needless to say everything was up-to-date there. Miss Harris and Miss Sills had been down to New York and had brought home numbers of exquisite pattern hats. The daintest one in the room had a chrysanthemum brim of pale blue, while the upper part of the hat was of finest white lace, caught down with pearls and falling over the back of the brim in two smart little pointed scarf ends. It was a beauty, and something about its dainty airiness suggested the sweet and piquante face of one of the three best dressed women in town. Miss Harris was so busy selling the hats that she had no time to individualize the patterns to those who were merely sight-seers, so we browsed around for ourselves, and saw the capuchins and coachmen's rosettes, and flower circles and draped brims, and other of this season's keynotes, and then we amused ourselves watching the people try the new hats on. One petite blonde was lovingly fingering a smart little black hat, with a fluted brim of what we decided must be mohair. Such a jaunty little hat it was and this fair girllooked so wistfully at it, but her wise mother insisted thhat she must choose a colored one as she had time enough before her for wearing all black. So the colored hats were tried on, and yet she went back to the black mohair toque until at last some one said "try it on and see," and then she looked, and believed that her mother was right, the hat was too old for her, but even then she laid it aside with a sigh of regret. Never mind little girl, "everything comes to the one who waits," and in time you may wear hats of such ilk, but then you may heave a sigh for a return of the days when you had to choose the more youthful styles.

There was a lovely pattern hat in black and white and the crown was covered with holly and mistletoe—the holly leaves as well as the mistletoe berries in glistening white. Our attention was called to it by a tall fair girl whose blue eyes laughed behind her pince-nez as she said, "Think of the fun of going around "under the mistletoe" every time you wore your new spring hat! That would be tempting Providence wouldn't it?" And then, of course, every one in that corner of Steacy's room looked at the hat in question, and two well informed, but intensely mater-of-fact matrons, hastened to tell the girls that those were holly berries—not mistletoe—they knew by the leaves! But she of the pince-nez was like the little maid who "would have her will," for she turned away saying, "I am sure it is meant for mistletoe!" Hats are not the only attraction upstairs at Steacy's. The ready made gowns and mantles are most fetching, and drew a crowd of admiring women en route for the millinery room, and it would hardly be fair to pass by Steacy's opening without a word for Miss Bolton, the clever modiste, who is turning out such artistic gowns that there is really no need for any one to go to Toronto or Montreal. Miss Bolton has just returned from New York where she attended the dress makers' protective association convention, and she is brimful of new ideas, which her coterie of assistants carry out so perfectly that Steacy's made-to-order gowns are a delight to those who see them.

Starr and Sutcliffe's millinery opening was on Thursday and I am told that they never sold so large a number of hats in one day as they did thisyear. I was a day late in visiting their show-room, but found any number of pattern hats on exhibition, and when so many pretty models were there on Friday, the display on Thursday must have been magnificent. There was a lovely turquoise blue hat trimmed with long strings of pearls. The Tom 'o Shanter crown was blue straw, braided with white tulle and the effect was amazingly soft and shimmering. The hat was perfectly flat on top, but the brim had a soft draping of pale blue and white, and huge pearl capuchins were fastened here and there among coiled rows of pearl around the crown. Many of the hats at Starr & Sutcliffe's had the chrysanthemum brim effect carried out in rows of pleated tulle, and one particularly dainty hat had its under rim entirely of pleated white tulle after this fashion, while the crown was of white embroidered chiffon, and the only trimming was one magnificent white plume and one pearl capuchin. Mohair braid was very much to the fore on the hats there. It is so light and flexible for summer wear, and comes in the most delicate shades as well as in serviceable browns and blacks. The combination of colors in some of the hats is unusual, but the tones are so harmoniously arranged as to make a most artistic whole. One hat in the show case has apricot velvet on it, and it is the softest and richest shade imaginable on this particular hat. Another was a wood nymph's hat. They did not call it so, but that is what it should be named, for it is all carried out in the most harmonious mingling of browns and greens and is trimmed with brown and green roses. The description does not sound a bit pretty, but the hat itself is an artistic triumph—no mere words could convey the meaning of those intermingling shades, one has to see it before the beauty can be realized. There were ordinary hats, too, everyday wearable hats, but after all it is of the unusual patterns we write in recounting our experiences of a millinery opening, and so the San Toy sailors, or the straw walking hats are taken for granted, but they are there and much sought after, for all that.

One of the centre tables at Starr & Sutcliffe's is devoted exclusively to children's hats, and the big white silk baby hats, and the red silk hats of the same pattern are a tempting bate to those who have little people at home whose faces might be so becomingly framed in those stylish shapes. I seldom have seen a finer display of children's hats and bonnets than those at Starr & Sutcliffe's this year—so old and young may find pretty things there.

Now any one who thinks it is easy to write up three millinery openings for one letter had better try. After all, the styles are the same in all the shops — flowers, feathers mohair braid, pearl trimmings, capuchins, aigrettes—some of the patterns are prettier than others, but even that is merely a matter of taste, and what one admired another might not like in the least. So it is in everything; why then should hats be any exception? Taking it all in all, however, the hats at all the millinery rooms are uncommonly pretty this year, and if I have been unable to do them justice it is no fault of theirs, but merely the clumsiness of a pen that absolutely refuses to express the shades and shapes that are so evident to the eye of sense, but so elusive when one tries to transfer an account of them to paper.

There were thirty-one members of the Badminton club at the general meeting at the Armouries on Wednesday afternoon to hear the report of the secretary-treasurer and to discuss the future management of the club. Mr. Cappon was requested to act as chairman and the meeting was called to order at four o'clock.

The secretary, Major Hewett, reported a balance of $1.62, at the credit of the club, and stated that under these financial circumstances he and the president (Mrs. Ogilvie) were not in a position to carry on the club any longer.

Prof. Macnaughton then moved that a hearty vote of thanks be given to Mrs. Hunter Ogilvie and Major Hewet for their great services in connection with the organization and management of the club.

Colonel Drury seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

Moved by Major Straubenzee, seconded by Mr. Macnaughton, that the present system of management, by means of a president and secretary, be continued until the 1st of May, and also for the ensuing year. Carried unanimously.

The next motion brought forth the speech of the day, and although there was a "chiel among them takin' notes," the notes were taken mentally, not on paper, and therefore only a fragment of Mr. Macnaughton's address can be given.

The motion was that Mrs. Hunter Ogilvie and Major Hewett be requested to continue their services as president and secretary for the remainder of the season, and also for the ensuing year; and further, that they be authorized to call for an additional subscription to carry on the club till the 1st of May. Mr. Macnaughton distinctly expressed his reasons for the motion, and his emphatic speech was punctuated with "hear-hears" from the meeting.

He said there had been some talk about having a committee, but under the circumstances the appointment of such a committee would practically amount to a vote of censure upon the late management of the club. True, it might be more regular to have a committee, but this was an exceptional club and its position was anomalous It owed its existence solely to the energy of its president and secretary, and had been capitally managed by them. The members owed their membership to Mrs. Ogilvie, they were members by her invitation, and when they accepted membership they fully understood that there was no committee, but that the management was that of president and secretary only. Any one who had any scruples about joining such an anomaly was free to decline the invitation at the outset. However, people were only too glad to become members, and the club was started, experimentally, for six months. Now that time had expired, and it remained for the meeting to say whether a change should be made, or whether the club should be run on the old lines. Considering how admirably the management had been conducted he had great pleasure in moving that the officers be president and secretary only, and that Mrs. Ogilvie and Major Hewett be asked to retain office for next year.

The motion was seconded by the Rev. G. L. Starr and carried unanimously.

The president and secretary preferred that their resignations should be considered final, but upon pressure they yielded to the re-iterated requests of their friends and agreed to continue in office for another year. Their decision was received with unanimous satisfaction and hearty applause.

The secretary announced that a subscription of seventy-five cents from each member would defray the expenses of the club up to the end of this season.

Moved by Major Straubenzee, seconded by Mr. Mackenzie, that a committee, comprising Major Hewett, Mr. Cappon, and Mr. Macnaughton, be empowered to draw up general rules for the guidance of the club. Carried unanimously.

Moved by Capt. Symons, seconded by Mr. F. H. Macnee, that the club provide the refreshments to be used at the meetings on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

An amendment to this was moved by Colonel Drury and seconded by Capt. Leslie, that the club provide refreshments for the Saturday meetings only. The amendment was lost and the chairman declared the motion carried.

The question of changing the Wednesday meeting to Tuesday or Thursday was put to the vote and lost.

The meeting concluded with a series of votes of thanks to all those who had rendered services to the club this winter.

The secretary read the constitution that had been drawn up for the approval of the club. This was accepted by the meeting and will be put into proper form by the committee appointed for that purpose.

The constitution will be printed in leaflet form as soon as possible, and every member will be furnished with a copy so that each may become familiar with the rules of the Kingston BadmintonClub.

Those present on Wednesday were: Colonel Montizambert, Colonel and Mrs. Drury, Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. Hunter Ogilvie, Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. Hemming, Capt. and Mrs. Eaton, Mr. and Mrs. Almon, Mrs. Gildersleeve, Mrs. March, Miss Hora, Miss Macnee, Miss Frances Macaulay, Miss Edith Straubenzee, Miss Lesslie, Miss Drury, Miss Gladys Drury, Miss Callaghan, Rev. G. L. Starr, Mr. Mackenzie, Prof. Cappon, Prof. Macnaughton, Major Hewett, Major Straubenzee, Capt. Symons, Mr. Caldwell, Mr. F. H. Macnee, Capt. Leslie.

Unfortunately the Victoria circle of The King's Daughters, and the ladies of the Infants' Home committee chose the same day for their ten cent teas, Easter Tuesday. After some consultation, The King's Daughters very kindly offered to change their date out of deference to the Infants' Home, in order that the teas may not clash, as they would be likely to do if both were on Easter Tuesday.

Owing to this change the ten cent tea at Mrs. R. M. Moore's, William street, will be given on Thursday, April 10th, instead of on Easter Tuesday. The proceeds will be used for hospital work by the Victoria circle.

The Infants' Home committee feel obliged to the circle for changing the date in their favor, and it is hoped that Mrs. Ward's tea will be a success an Easter Tuesday, as well as Mrs. Moore's, ten days later.

Although Tuesday night was announced as the date of the final meeting of the skating club, the weather continued cold enough for a meeting on Thursday night, when about fifty of the more enthusiastic members enjoyed another skate. A rumour is afloat that the men of the skating club are considering the question of a dance after Easter, as a suitable wind up to a very successful winter's sport. Nothing has been definitely stated yet, but the chances are that the skating club dance will be arranged for after Easter.

A RELIABLE OFFER.

Honest Help Free To Men.

We are authorized to state by Carl Kunz, Second and Brady streets, Davenport, Iowa, that any man who is nervous and debilitated or who is suffering from any of the various troubles resulting from overwork, excesses or abuse, such as nervous debility, exhausted vitality, lost vigor, unnatural drains and losses, lack of development, etc., can write to him in strict confidence and receive FREE OF CHARGE, full instructions how to be thoroughly cured.

Mr. Kunz himself was, for a long time, a sufferer from above troubles, and after trying in vain many advertised remedies, became almost entirely discouraged and hopeless. Finally he confided in an old clergyman, whose kind and honest advice enabled him to speedily obtain a perfect and permanent cure. Knowing to his own sorrow that so many poor sufferers are being imposed upon by unscrupulous quacks, Mr. Kunz considers it his duty, as an honest man, to give his fellow men the benefit of his experience and assist to a cure. Having nothing to sell, he asks for no money, the proud satisfaction of having done a great service to one in need, he rightly considers an ample reward for his trouble. If you write to Mr. Kunz, and follow his advice, you can rely upon being cured and upon absolute secrecy as well.

Address as above, enclosing a stamp. No attention will be given to those writing out of idle curiosity, therefore state that you really need a cure.

FATAL FALL OF PARANOIAC.

Rich Litigation Maniac Killed in Boston.

Boston, March 22.—Mrs. Julia B. French, wealthy, eccentric and famous throughout the country because of her many and varied lawsuits was found dead in her Back Bay residence on Thursday. Her body lay on top of an elevator. Medical examiner Draper reported that her death was due to an accident. She was seventy years of age.

Mrs. French is said to have had more lawsuits brought against her and appeared as plaintiff more times than any other person appearing in public. The litigation territory extended from the Atlantic coast to the Rocky mountains. In November, 1900, a medical expert testified that she was afflicted with "litigious paranoia." The most important and sensational lawsuit of her life was in relation to the will of her second husband, Benjamin French.

Yankee Steamers After Irish Trade

New York, March 22.—With the sailing of the steamship Haverford today the Red Star line inaugurated a service by way of Queenstown to Southampton and Antwerp. The service brings the Red Star line into competition with the Cunard and White Star lines for Irish and English immigrant and freight business. Considering the admissions made last spring that the American and the Red Star lines, the two departments of the International navigation company, and the Atlantic transport and the Leyland lines were to carry on business in a community of interest, the new departure of the Red Star may be taken to indicate an aggressive move by American capital upon a port whose freight and passenger business has been hitherto exclusively in control of British companies.

Ensign Tardy Married.

Annapolis, Md., March 22.—Ensign Walter B. Tardy, U.S.N., and Miss Florence Washington Nelson, daughter of commander Thomas Nelson, were married here to-day. The ceremony was performed in the naval academy chapel in the presence of a brilliant throng of naval men and their wives.

Ensign Tardy recently returned on leave from three years of service on the Asiatic station. He was the first American naval officer to enter Pekin after the allied armies had stormed their way to the relief of the legations. His errand was to escort Mrs. "Jack" Meyers, wife of the captain of marines, who commanded the American legation guard through its brilliant and desperate share of the united defence.

FORTUNE FOR THE BRAVE.

Wealthy German Bequeaths $12,000 to Grandson.

Cincinnati, March 22.—To reward his grandson, whom he had never seen, for his loyalty to his country, Max Schmahl, a millionaire sugar king in Germany, has bequeathed him the sum of $12,000 "because he was brave and loyal to his country in the time of trouble."

Otto Schmahl, the beneficiary, who is mentioned in the will of his grandfather, resides with his parents in a modest house at 183 West Clifton avenue. When president McKinley issued the declaration of war with Spain young Schmahl was one of the first to respond. He enlisted as a volunteen and saw service in Cuba. Later he re-enlisted in the Thirty-first Ohio volunteer infantry and served in the Philippines. He participated in numerous skirmishes, and when his wealthy grandfather learned of the meritorious deeds of his grandson he was full of joy and at once added a codicil to his will making the bequest.

The news apprising the young man of his fortune came in a letter from Germany. The bulk of the grandfather's estate will go to his widow and children.

Their gentle action and good effect on the system really make them a perfect little pill. They please those who use them. Carter's Little Liver Pills may well be termed "Perfection."

WRITE A POSTAL TO GET WELL.

Send No Money. Simply Tell Me Some One Who Needs Help.

If you are sick let me know it.

If you have a friend who needs help, tell me his address. Let me send the book he needs. Let me offer the sick one a way to get well.

Do that much, and I will do this:

I will send with the book an order on your druggist for six bottles Dr. Shrop's Restorative. will tell the druggist to let you test it for a month. If satisfied then, the cost is $5.50. If not, I will pay your druggist myself.

It shall not cost you a penny.

Please do note what that means.

I furnish the treatment, give you my best advice, answer all of your letters.

If I succeed, the cost is only $5.50, and the result is health. If I fail, my effort and my medicine is free.

Can't you see that I must know how to cure?

The reason is this: I have spent a lifetime in learning how to strengthen the inside nerves. That nerve power is the force that operates every vital organ. It is to your body what steam is to an engine.

When any vital organ is weak and fails in its duty, I bring it the power it needs. The results are certain, and most chronic diseases cannotbe cured in any other way.

My book will tell you why.

I dont mean that I never fail. I can always bring back this vital nerve power; but sometimes an organic disease, like cancer, makes a cure impossible.

But such conditions are rare. In any case, no matter how difficult, I will take the entire risk.

My records show that 39 in each 40 who get these six bottles pay for them—pay because they are cured. It is this remarkable record that makes such an offer possible.

There are 39 chances in 40 that I can cure you or your friend.

It is absolutely certain that in most chronic diseases my treatment represents the utmost that medicine can do.

It is certain, too, that no other physician will assume the risk, for no common treatment could stand a test like that.

No matter what your prejudice or doubts, remember that I take the risk. I alone am the loser if I fail. And if I succeed, you are well.

Be fair with yourself. At least get my book. I am sorry for the sick one who can say "no" to my offer.
