OF THE DAIRY PRODUCTS

EASTERN ONTARIO. Instructors Publow And Zufelt, Of The Kingston Dairy School Have Evolved A Good Plan, Which They Explained At The

Request Of The Whig. There are few names better known to those interested in the dairying interests of eastern Ontario than those of G. G. Publow, of Perth, and L. A Zufelt, of Chesterville, both popular and efficient instructors at the Kingston dairy school. To long experience in the business they have added the benefit to be derived from hard study, until they have mastered their work and become leaders in thought Lever's dry soap powder at Red and activity in everything touching the dairying industry of eastern . On-

had no meeting last night, a quorum ; For the past few years these gentlemen have been studying the problem of how the products of the factories could best be improved, so that higher prices could be secured Yor Canadian cheese and butter. They have evolved a plan which has every appearance of being the right one. The farmers' institute has recognized its value; the Ontario government has been impressed with its importance. So much so has this been the cace that the institute will put the plan into operation this summer, and the government has set aside $2,000 to cover expenses and acourage true effort to improve the dairy products of the province.

To a Whig reporter yesterday Messrs. Publow and Zufelt explained their plan. In brief it is as follows First-We must have some definite object or ideal in view. This should be uniformity and excellence of quality. Second-To attain this we will have to overcome the following drawbacks silver cross has been placed on the Poor milk, poor factories and inferior makers

Third-The method to employ: By organized effort eminating from one head so that uniformity of action will York, have arrived in the city to be assured; also the ideal of our work visit their sister, Miss Carrie O'Don- should be kept constantly before u nell. Arch street, who is seriously ill; and everything that is done should be towards attaining this object, by first creating a demand for this improve ment and then safeguarding these interests by a uniformity of inspection. Having thus Friefly outlined the na ture of the work to be accomplished we will next consider the best me thods to employ to bring it to a successful issue. In the first place, who is financially the most interested in any improvement or otherwise our dairy product? The answer must be, the producer of the raw material the farmer. Then before we can make any improvement there must be a demand for it. Therefore our first work must be largely of an educa tional character-to show the farmer that he is directly affected; that it i to his interest, first to send good pure, wholesome milk to the factory and then to demand a better class of factories, and the employment of non but competent makers.

To insure the carrying out of these improvements the factories will have to be organized into groups of say forty or fifty each, with competent men placed in charge, whose duty would be to go about among these factories to see that none but com petent makers were employed and that "Fair Play," in the News of April | the factories were kept in proper con
