BRAVE YOUNG MEN.

What Capt. Chartrand Says of Them in La Patrie.

Capt. Chartrand published in La Patrie, of Montreal, the following: "Oh! brave young men!"

"It is with pride and deep sadness that I read the details of the first great accomplishment in Africa, by a detachment of Canadian troops. They fought till almost every man was killed or wounded."

"The war will still be the strength of his last cartridges, and then break his rifle and lay down to die."

"Among those brave fellows was one of our cadets, who was still at the R.M.C. a few months ago. The commanding officer of this little troop is himself an ex-graduate of our college and a son of Kingston, of whom this city is exceedingly proud."

"Since this was begun, never did a Canadian surrender to the enemy. The wounded alone were taken. At Paarlberg, side by side, French and English Canadians have sealed with their blood the union of both races, which inhabit Canada."

"They have had besides an unexpected result. It will have made our country better known all over the world. This last fight has contributed towards that more than all the commercial or emigration agents put together at the great papers of London, reproduced by the universal press, tell the details of this battle under titles like these: 'Canadian Valor,' 'Splendid Canadian Valor,' 'Gallantry of Canadian,' 'Bravery of Canadians,' 'Death Rather Than Surrender.'"

"It is by such sorrowful sacrifices that nations are built. France and England have sown the seeds of their glory, and the seeds, in order to attain the high ranks they now have among nations. Here, in Canada, our forefathers have spilt their blood all over the northern continent to conquer the patrimony they left us."

"As it may be painful to state, but nevertheless it is through war that people maintain their existence. History proves that effeminate peace has destroyed nations, while war, by stimulating energy, has kept them at the summit. We must, therefore, bow before the fate God reserves for humanity."

"Sleep in peace, oh! brave sons of Canada! Your death is a glorious one in our history. The souvenir of the noble sacrifice of your lives will help us to accomplish the destinies which future reserves for our beloved Canada!"

THAT CHAPTER.

A Chapter of Scott's Emulsion often holds a prominent position in the histories of weak children.

The gist of that chapter usually reads like this: "Child weak and thin—began with small doses of Scott's Emulsion three times a day—after a week appetite improved—soon a little stronger—child more lively—weighs more."

And so it goes till the child is reported well and strong.

Manager Godwin of the Victoria day celebration committee, has already succeeded in raising $125 to meet the event. The various committees meet the evening to further plan out the work.

Since the re-opening of the public schools after the Easter holidays admitted three new pupils have been admitted. There are also twenty-nine new kindergarten pupils, eighteen of whom have only recently arrived in the city.

This is the store to get your spring outfit. Grand Union.

James Cruse, janitor at the collegiate institute, has asked the board of education for extra remuneration for working forty-four evenings, during which night classes were conducted at the collegiate. The management committee will deal with the matter.

Loose curtains can be washed beautifully, without injuring them by rubbing, by putting a tablespoonful of Enterprise Renovator in the water. This makes them a beautiful white color, and saves the wear and tear of rubbing in tin, 25c. and 50c. E. C. Mitchell.

Some person disposed of a dead dog by putting it in a bag and throwing it over the fence into a vacant lot at the corner of Sydenham and Queen streets. The dog, caught on the fence, and the bag was dumped out. The owner of the property threatens to prosecute the man who did it, unless he removes the dog.

"Lost, strayed or stolen—the water works committee," remarked chairman King as he wandered through the city buildings yesterday afternoon, in search of his committee. His words were addressed to the board of works, then sitting, and chairman McLeod, who called to his colleague the hiding place of several aldermen.

The May number of the Delimitator is the third of the great spring issues in both fashion and literary features and is the most notable of the year. With the many artistic designs for garments for late spring wear come advance summer fashions from the hands of eminent designers, and in attractiveness they styles have probably never been surpassed. The illustrations are also very fine and are illustrated.

I don't think there is a lawn grass seed on the market that is the equal of the Peerless Lawn seed, we can point to some of the best lawns in the city that were made so entirely with it, we have also sold, this spring to one of the railway lines coming to the city thirty-five pounds of it for their stations along the line, they are regular customers for it, 47c. per pound to your lawn, 20c. a pound, 5 pounds for $1. E. C. Mitchell.

Imperialism and The Coronation. Prof. Shortt, in Queen's Quarterly.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier unacceptably acted the part of a statesman. He wisely declined to place himself in a position which might be unexpectedly rushed under cover of a special outbreak of personal loyalty and imperial sentiment, all very proper in their kind. It is always in order to discuss such familiar and well-defined topics as ways and means for improving postal and telegraphic communication, and increasing shipping facilities between the different countries of the empire. It might even be possible to discover some basis upon which the mutual efforts of the colonies to exclude each other's goods from each other's markets might be relaxed, and more friendly trade relations established.

Indeed, the Canadian government has already prepared the way for the discussion of such matters, and is therefore both willing and anxious to have such questions taken up at the colonial conference. Beyond these, however, it is wisely thought to be inadvisable to venture on such a special occasion. There has been altogether too much said about seizing this, that or the other opportune moment for committing the empire to some project which presumably it could not be induced to accept while in any calm or reasonable frame of mind.

Is Returning Home. Vel. Capt. W. J. Morgan is on route home from New Orleans, having been called here by the dangerous illness of his mother, Mrs. Hugh Morgan, Princess street. For some weeks past Dr. Morgan has been in New Orleans buying horses and mules for the use of the British forces in South Africa. He was under orders to sail to the Transvaal in a few days to resume his former position with the 2nd Dragoon.
