IS THE DESPATCH CORRECT? THAT BOERS ACCEPT BRITISH PEACE TERMS.

Secretary of British Chartered South African Company Denies It—An Editor Claims His Interpretation is Correct.

London, April 11.—Frederick Rothford, former secretary of the British chartered South African company, was asked this morning at his residence, Langley Castle, near Southampton, if he had received a telegram announcing that Boer leaders had accepted the British terms. Mr. Rothford replied that the rumor was entirely without foundation.

The despatch appearing in the Financial and Business Review, which issued extra editions, it appears to have been originated in the town of Pontypool, adjacent to Langley Castle.
