THE STRENUOUS LIFE.

THE POWER OF LIFE AND HOW TO OBTAIN IT.

An Able Sermon by Rev. Hugh Pedley—A Tribute to the True Woman Who Makes a Happy Home—Industry, Concentration and Faith Necessary to Obtain Power.

Rev. Hugh Pedley, an eminent Montreal divine, occupied the pulpit at both the services yesterday at the First Congregational church. He is a speaker of more than usual ability, and it was expected that he would draw the good-sized congregations he did. His delivery is slow, not so slow as to be tedious, but a careful degree—his enunciation is perfect and his words are full of power, wisdom and deep-rooted earnestness. He is such a one as can hold an audience spell-bound, and send them away with the conviction that they have heard something of value.

His subject last night was a broad one, "The Strenuous Life," his text being I Corinthians 15, 26, "And every man that loveth his life shall lose it, and he that hateth his life shall keep it unto life eternal." He treated the subject in all things, they do it to obtain a corruptible crown, but we an incorruptible. The phrase, "the strenuous life," which is closely connected with present-day progress, he considered (1) the fitness necessary to gain that object. Regarding the first, the speaker pointed out that the old-fashioned view of life was that of pilgrimage. Bunyan embodied this idea in his "Pilgrim's Progress." While he hesitated to criticize one of the classics of sacred literature, the preacher would say, however, that there was in it a conspicuous failure of Christian energy having its origin in the city of destruction to the city celestial; his only object was to get to heaven.

Power should be sought after—power for God, power for good, power to lift up the world. What did God call men he calls them to power, as shown in the cases of Moses, of Daniel, and of Jeremiah. Christ, too, called His disciples to power. There were three ways through which we could receive power: (1) Wealth; (2) Intellectual resources; (3) social influence. We may seek after money, not for its own sake, but for the good we may do with it. A man can receive his money into all that is noble and best of human life, by helping hospitals, colleges, etc. Power of that kind is good.

The power of intellect. There were great possibilities for good here. There was power in professional and public life; there was wonderful power in music, in art, in personal beauty, in gracious manners, in the woman who knows not only how to furnish a home, but knows how to keep a home. The man or woman—especially the latter—who has done nothing else than make a home that shall live in the memory of her children, has certainly not lived in vain. A man can have his home as a background of his mind, the thought of a Christian home.

The conditions through which we may win power (1) Faith in God. It was faith in God that kept Latimer, Cromwell, Lord Shaftesbury, and Lincoln steadfast in their work. (2) Concentration. We must give up certain things in order to concentrate our attention on one fixed purpose. We must get our mind down to one thing if we are to do anything worth while. One of the greatest dangers to young men to-day was the danger of dissipation of energy. They scattered their energy in too many directions. It was a law of God that a man shall put in a certain amount of work or he will not get any power out of life. We cannot dispense with discipline and hard work. "They that together said the speaker in summing up, "make what we call 'the strenuous life.'"

Back In His Pulpit Again. Rev. Alexander Laird, the esteemed pastor of Cooke's Presbyterian church, filled the pulpit again yesterday, after having spent the past five weeks in Philadelphia for the benefit of his health. To large-sized congregations yesterday he preached forceful sermons with more than his old-time vigor. He has returned considerably improved in health, which is due to his many friends and admirers.

Christian Assurance. In Bethel Congregational church, last evening, the pastor, Rev. D. N. Morden, gave a very interesting bible reading on Christian assurance. The assurance of salvation should be possessed by every child of God. True, some thought it a work of humility to be in doubt about this important matter, and looked upon it as nothing short of presumption for anyone to say that he was sure of salvation. Many were making the mistake of being governed by their feelings, and as these were constantly changing, they had no abiding peace. The word of God was full of teaching on assurance, and none need be in doubt about their acceptance of the assurance, but take God at His word. This is the record that God has given to us, eternal life and this life is in His Son. Believing the record that God has thus given, we have eternal life. How do we know?

INCIDENTS OF THE DAY.

PARAGRAPHS PICKED UP BY OUR BUSY REPORTERS.

The Spice of Every Day Life—What the People Are Talking About—Nothing Escapes Attention.

The thermometer this morning dropped over the freezing point. A large number of new members have been lately added to the bicycle club. The house of industry committee was called to meet at four o'clock this afternoon. Whitney so far has no policy! Is there an elector who wants a man in power who has no plans? When washing greasy dishes or pots and pans, Lever's Dry Soap is powder will remove the grease with the greatest ease, at all over the country there is a strong conviction that Ross is going back to power again.

Church Notes. Rochester, N.Y., is to have a new Episcopal church at a cost of $150,000. The Roman Catholic diocese of Brooklyn sent $10,000 to Rome by the pilgrimage lately sailed. Rev. Dr. Johnston, St. Andrew's church, has declined the call to Worcester, Mass. Mrs. Fraser, in the morning and Mrs. Evans, in the evening, rendered acceptable solos in Queen street Methodist church Sunday. Archbishop Corrigan, of New York, will be raised to the cardinalate at a consistory held in Rome in June. The diocese of the archbishop presides over one of the largest in the world. He is said to be a prudent and wise administrator.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Levants of the People—What They Are Saying and Doing. Miss G. W. Wright, Colborne street, is visiting friends in Toronto. J. Travers Lewis, in hospital here for several days was able, yesterday, to leave for Ottawa. Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Rees returned today from New York, where they spent their honeymoon. Lady Cartwright gave a ladies' luncheon on Thursday, at which the guests numbered fourteen.

Miss Rigby, Kingston, was a guest at a dinner given in Ottawa on Friday night by Miss Izet Goodwin. William Magee, Hamilton, is dead, aged eighty-five years. A brother, Robert Magee, resides at Adolphus street. William Denesley, Rideau street, who has been employed at the cotton mill for the past year as loom repairer, has moved to Cornwall.

It is expected that Col. Cartwright will be well enough to be removed to his home from St. Luke's hospital, Ottawa, where he had undergone an operation. Miss Margaret Mosg, of Smith's Falls, is in the city to receive her diploma as a graduate nurse, at the graduation exercises in convocation hall this evening. W. J. O'Donnell returned to New York on Saturday. He was called here through the illness of his sister, Miss Carrie O'Donnell, Arch street, who is now regaining her health. P. G. Lockett, of the Lockett shoe store, returned on Saturday after a couple of weeks' absence from Montreal. It was snowing in the Canadian metropolis when he left there Saturday forenoon.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Score have issued invitations to a marriage of their daughter, Margaret, to J. Edward Potts, son of the Rev. Dr. Potts, for April 23rd, in Elm street Methodist church, Toronto.

MARINE NOTES.

Getting Ready For Opening Of Navigation. The crew of the Calvin company vessel arrive tonight to fit out. The schooner Junieson, from lake ports, is unloading grain at the malt house. The M. T. company steamers will likely proceed up the lake in a few days. The Calvin company has purchased the tug Royal from the Collins Bay towing and wrecking company. Richardson's elevator, Sloops Granville and Leveson, from Nanapanes, steamers Alberta and sloop Two Brothers from Trenton; sloop Pilot from Belleville; sloop Minnie from Wolfe Island.

Attracting Fashionable People. Kathryn Kicker's engagement in "The Country Girl," at the Grand opera house on Wednesday, April 23rd, will undoubtedly draw one of the largest and most fashionable audiences of the present theatrical season. When the first announcement appeared of Miss Kicker's coming, inquiries were started and reservation of seats made at the box office. Many of those who have signified their intention of being present are prominent in social circles and several theatre parties have already formed to attend the performance. Miss Kicker's company this season is reported to be one of the strongest that has ever been engaged in the support of a star. Among the leading players are Louis Massen, Robert V. Ferguson, Laurence Rood, H. L. Davidson, G. S. O'Leary, Marion Ashworth and Florence Bates-Horsfall.

No Longer Monarch. Once, the registrar of Queen's was monarch of Fort Henry heights. Every Sunday afternoon, he tramped over Cataragat bridge, up the hill, and leisurely and proudly surveyed his possessions, stretching down to the river. But now, changed is the scene. His dominion, like those of the Indians in by-gone years, have been invaded, and many strange foot tramp over the heights. Yesterday afternoon the university man was seen sitting high up on the hillside, no doubt, mapping out a plan of campaign to repel the trespassers and again assert his dominion over the historic heights.

SPORT IN GENERAL.

Notes About the Various Sporting Fields.

The Toronto "Academy" club's English service has been to-day with a match against Kent. Duquette, who pitched for the Pontiac last summer, has no intention of joining the Gannahoque team. The "Tories" and locomotive works baseball teams will likely have a practice match next Saturday.

Toronto Globe: Elliott handled Hardy's delivery perfectly and, barring one low throw to second, did good work. St. George club, Montreal, is the first in Canada to become affiliated with the mother pong association of London, Eng.

Toronto Telegram: The one in whom interest was centered in a recent game was "Chancer" Elliott, and the general opinion seems to be that Barrow did a wise thing to cop him out.

After a bare contest among the members of the Potted Club, James Holland, of this city, made the largest number of points and was presented with a silver cup, suitably inscribed. The cup is a very handsome one.

The first baseball game of the season was played on Saturday afternoon, between the Longshoremen and "A" and "B" batterymen, resulting in a victory for the former by a score of 5 to 7. The victors think that with a little practice they can trim the Oldfellers.

In Montreal, as well as in Ottawa, there is talk of a new racecourse. Montreal already has a course and a jockey club, but the location of the course is fourteen miles away racing has never flourished in Montreal as it would under more favorable opportunities.

It is quite likely that the Pontiac will enter the proposed baseball league, to include Ogdensburg, Alexandria Bay, Clayton, Gannahoque and Kingston. All these places can be reached by boat during the summer season. Manager Goughgong will meet with the Ogdensburg promoters of the scheme to arrange details.

Toronto News: "Not so hard, not so hard," murmured captain Jimmy Bannan when "Chancer" Elliott was kicking 5 ball at the field, "It's too early yet to take chances on injuries. They'll get the fast ones soon enough." Toft will have to play the best of ball almost to hold his place behind the bat with Elliott.

Toronto Telegram: "Chancer" Elliott was asked yesterday why a man was crazy enough to prefer the position of catcher where there are so many chances of getting hurt. "Chancer" explained that he was interested in a man liked the position because he was always in the game, and he might have added that when he was not in the game he was generally in the hospital.

THE ELECTRIC ROAD. Promoters Will Soon Return With Full Plans.

On Thursday, A. A. Dowd and J. E. Smith, the American capitalists interested in the proposed electric railway from Toronto to Cornwall, and George E. Sleeper, head engineer for the company, left Cornwall for Boston, after having made a careful study of the country through which the new line will run. To-morrow they will hold a meeting in Boston, and in ten days, they expect to return to Kingston with plans fully developed.

The company has authorized county crown-attorney Whiting to advertise in the forty-seven different municipalities through which the road will run, acquainting the people with the plans of the company and arranging for the agreement for the right of way, etc.

It is a general complaint among local boot and shoe dealers that they are imposed upon by many people, who think that because they buy a pair of footwear, they should forever be supplied with them to such an extent that the dealers will likely come to some agreement whereby it shall be stopped.

HIS HONOR WAS LENIENT. A Young Man Gets Only Two Months For Theft.

Henry Barker, charged with the theft of a large quantity of goods from Lewis Martin's hotel a week ago Sunday, appeared before the magistrate on the advice of his counsel, W. F. Nickle, he pleaded guilty. Barker implored the magistrate to give him a chance, saying he had never been arrested before and, if he had, he would go to Buffalo, where he had a job.

"I could send you to the penitentiary for this job," said his honor. "But I don't want to ruin your life. If you go unpunished, it is all your own fault." Barker was then given the very light sentence of two months in jail.

The charge of drunkenness against a young Kingstonian, adjudged from last Monday, was again up. "You can have your choice," said the magistrate. "Go west where you can't get liquor, take off your coat and work hard for six months till you get the whiskey out of your system, and then come back a better man and a credit to your family; or you can stay here and if you appear before me again I can send you to Central prison for a year."

The young man chose the former alternative, he would get out of the "house" for good, and departed in a gloomy mood.

CHALMERS ANNIVERSARY.

SPECIAL SERVICES WERE HELD ON SUNDAY.

Revs. Frois, Jordan and Macnaughton, of Queen's, Were the Franchers—Large Congregations Present.

Services to mark the fifty-sixth anniversary of its founding were held in Chalmers church on Sunday. Large congregations were present morning and evening. Rev. Dr. Jordan, of Queen's, was the preacher at morning services, and his discourse was based on Zechariah ii, 1-5—the prophecy concerning the extension of Jerusalem without walls and the days to come of blessing and peace. Dr. Jordan is a powerful pulpit teacher, and his explication of that old testament prophecy was most impressive and instructive. He showed Zechariah to be a prophet of consolation, preaching hope and comfort to the Jews after long chastisement. The young man, living in the vision as going forth to measure Jerusalem, represented two great things characteristic of young men—hope in the future and desire of definite knowledge. If a young man has no hope in the future, he is a dead man; he is as dead. It is well for young men to start out, also, by trying to be clear and accurate. "Were the prophets words fulfilled?—that Jerusalem should be built without walls and inhabited as a town, according to the letter—no; but in the deeper sense, the prophecy was fulfilled. Dr. Jordan referred to the church as having done a great deal of wall building through its many sects. It is surprising, he said, how many things men can build walls on. But in these times they can well be done without, just as Canada and the United States need no dividing wall. The Roman Catholic church claims all truth, and walls itself about. But if you want to find the Roman Catholic church at its best, you'll find it where there are lots of Protestants. If you want it at its worst, said Dr. Jordan, go to the places where it has its own way and builds up its walls. Then there were the walls of caste even in this democratic country. He grieved over this, in a land where men should be judged by their worth. Walls can only be dispensed with when you have God. Dr. Jordan said that he had always taught young people a religion, not consisting of a strait-jacket, but of living principles and reverence for God and their fellows.

At the evening service, Rev. Prof. Macnaughton, of Queen's, preached a powerful sermon, which related chiefly to Presbyterianism. He claimed it was by no chance that those Scottish born and of that descent were Presbyterian. Some people think they are at liberty to choose their own faith like a suit of clothes, take the one of the easiest fit and the fanciest cut. But that is not so. He could not imagine himself kissing a bishop's ring, whether by accident or not. His Scottish descent, woven into every fibre of his being, prevented that. Historical influences have made us what we are, and if we are born into the Presbyterian faith, and in young-er days had its teachings inculcated into us, no matter afterwards to what extent we may have been away from the fold, the general type and mold of our teaching will remain penetrable in the soul. Here, as elsewhere, the child is father of the man. A man, under the name of an impulsive reason, will not turn his back on the church of his fathers.

Prof. Macnaughton made some plain statements about that vexed question of the Confession of Faith. He showed that in the middle of the nineteenth century it became necessary to say how it understood and interpreted the scriptures, so that there should be order in the church. Every church addressed itself to that task. The Westminster Confession was meant as a subordinate help, not as a limit to the exploiting of the scriptures' treasures. It left room for the knowledge of God to grow. We do not and cannot bind ourselves to every part of it. Prof. Macnaughton said, but we accept it as a valuable and helpful historical document, handed down from the past, and linking the present with the past. There is nothing in it to divide us from the church of our fathers, and there is much to bind us to it. In conclusion, the preacher cautioned Presbyterians to become free of all narrowness and self-righteousness, and to keep the church was oft-times accused of fostering.

The closing hymn, sung with vigor, to the old psalm tune, Irish, was most appropriate upon the anniversary occasion. O God our help in ages past, O God our help in ages past, Ours hope for years to come. The musical part of the services was of the best. In the morning Miss Piers gave a pleasing rendition of "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," from Handel's Messiah. "For God so Loved the World," was sung by a quartette, consisting of Mrs. Galloway, Miss Bates, B. Galloway and C. J. Kelso. The anthem was "Gloria In Excelsis," from Farmer's mass. The evening solo was by C. B. S. Harvey, who sang "Like as the Hart Desireth," Stainer's "Send out Thy Light" was the anthem, and Handel's Largo was rendered as a male chorus. As organist, Mrs. Dobbs gave splendid service.
