ous Things-The Alliance is Not As Well Supported As it Should Be.

Hecently the evangelical alliance, of tingston, not a very aggressive ody, has been turning over in its mind the need of action in defence of he Sabbath, and in the better enreement of the liquor law. As the world goes, Kingston is a respectable, serious looking city, but by no means strictly Sabbatarian. Very soon-boys will cross the bridge and play baseball all Sunday on the Barriefield or without, will care to interfere. Young men of sporting tendencies and uddicted to yachting will spend the airest Sunday afternoons erusing up and down the harbor. In the course of the winter quasi-social functions have been encroaching upon the day. So that it may be time for the allinnee to awake out of sleep.

Then the liquor law is believed to he very loosely observed. Evasions in various ways are practised, yet con-victions are rare, which, in the opinion of some officials, is regarded as and aign-which in the opinion other officials is proof that all lovely. The alliance may not be able to do much in the way of compelling a better enforcement of the law, but chiefly of three or four men, others who ought to be members, de work as can be done only when men and churches are Joynily banded each other, with united front, soon the worst evils that afflict community would be rooted out. But beyond gushing, sentimental speeches. some good men and good churches will not go.
