The age has its advantage and disadvantage. The children of to-day have privileges, amusements (innocent enough and numerous enough); and outings and educational facilities that were denied to their parents. The average father and mother do not de sire their families to suffer any privations, and they make sacrifices that are costly, in any case, in order that the rising generations may enjoy themselves. These are the advantages. As against them there is the tendency to be fast, and it is simply demoralizing. Boys will smoke cigarettes, loaf at street-corners, list en to indifferent stories, read dime novels, take in the rough shows, run riot in the streets, play cards, and keep late hours. These are the disadvantages of city life. They constitute an education that makes for evil, and evil continually.

The home and the school are ex pected to give direction and bent to the youthful character. In the one the children get (or ought to get) the training that contributes to true manhood and true womanhood. The bearing of father and mother leave their impress permanently upon the children. As the parents are, in their domestic relations, in life and service. in attitude and action, in their daily walk and conversation, so are children, generally. Of course there are exceptions. Despite the best of environments, the best of training, the best of example, some boys will go astray. The reflection on the home, however, is not serious when it has not

Council Would Not Give Tender To Selby & Youlden At $1,150. Two by laws were put through by the city council last night; one was the Selby & Youlden foundry exemp tion by law, the other being the builders' by-law. Alderman Graham introduced his by-law to reduce the butchers' license fee from $50 to $5. It passed the first reading, and then the council sat upon it, the conserva tives voting against it to a man. Ald erman Graham pointed out that his by-law was in conformity with petition presented by the butchers. Then for an hour there was a warm discussion over the Selby & Youlden tender, introduced when alderman Graham moved that the tender of $1. 150 for a boiler be accepted. Alderman King wanted to refer it to the fire and light committee, and have them withdraw and act upon it at once. A discussion followed and finally aldermen Craig and Farrell moved that this be done. But, as it came from the liberal side of the council, the conservatives voted it down, after suggesting the action. 'Alderman McLeod declared it was time "we get through with this firm.
